Truman, Aides
Confer; Attlee
Flying To U. S.Briton May Urge
Kid-Glove Policy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (P) — The grave turn of events for United Nations forces in Korea today set off a series of top level conferences involving President Truman, the State and Defense Departments and key Democratic and Republican congressional leaders.

The extended talks, which lasted far into the night, came on the eve of the arrival of British Prime Minister Attlee for crisis discussions with Mr. Truman. Attlee left London by plane in mid-afternoon for the overnight trip to Washington. He is due at National airport about 9:30 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

After Mr. Truman had conferred during the day with top government officials, the key congressional leaders were summoned to the State Department for an unusual Sunday night conference with Undersecretary of State Webb.

Congress Leaders in Huddle
Called in for a fill-in on latest developments involving the Korean war and the intervention by Red China were:

Sens. Lucas (Ill.), Democratic majority leader; Myers (Pa.), assistant majority leader; Wherry (Neb.), Republican minority leader; and Saltonstall (Mass.), assistant minority leader.

House: Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.), and Reps. Battle (Ala.), a key Democrat on the Foreign Affairs Committee; Vorys (Ohio), a top Republican on that group; and Martin (R-Mass.), former speaker of the House.

Called in earlier in the day for conferences were Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Sen. Wiley (Wis.), ranking Republican member of that group in the absence of Sen. Vandenberg (Mich.), who is ill.

Connally would not comment but Wiley told a reporter afterward that "the situation is very serious."

A State Department official said Acheson finally left his desk to go home about 7:30 p. m., after a busy day that began when he visited the Pentagon in early morning to confer with Defense Department leaders.

Blair House Conference

At Mr. Truman's request, Acheson, Secretary of Defense Marshall, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and W. Averell Harriman, the President's foreign affairs coordinator, gathered at Blair House.

They met for two and a half hours. Except for Harriman, the President held a two-hour conference.

Raids Knock Out
Gambling Ring

DETROIT, Dec. 3 (P) — Detroit and Windsor police raided a number of alleged gambling establishments last night and shut down what one officer said was "pretty nearly" a billion-dollar gambling ring.

In an unusual show of U. S.-Canadian law enforcement cooperation, the police struck together at 18 alleged handbook and race result distribution centers in the two border cities.

Inspector Paul Slack, vice squad inspector who led the Detroit raids, said the places raided did nearly a billion-dollar annual business in horse race betting, pools on sporting events and lotteries.

Authorities here arrested 75 persons, confiscating telephones, printing presses, and hundreds of thousands of lottery books and sport pool cards.

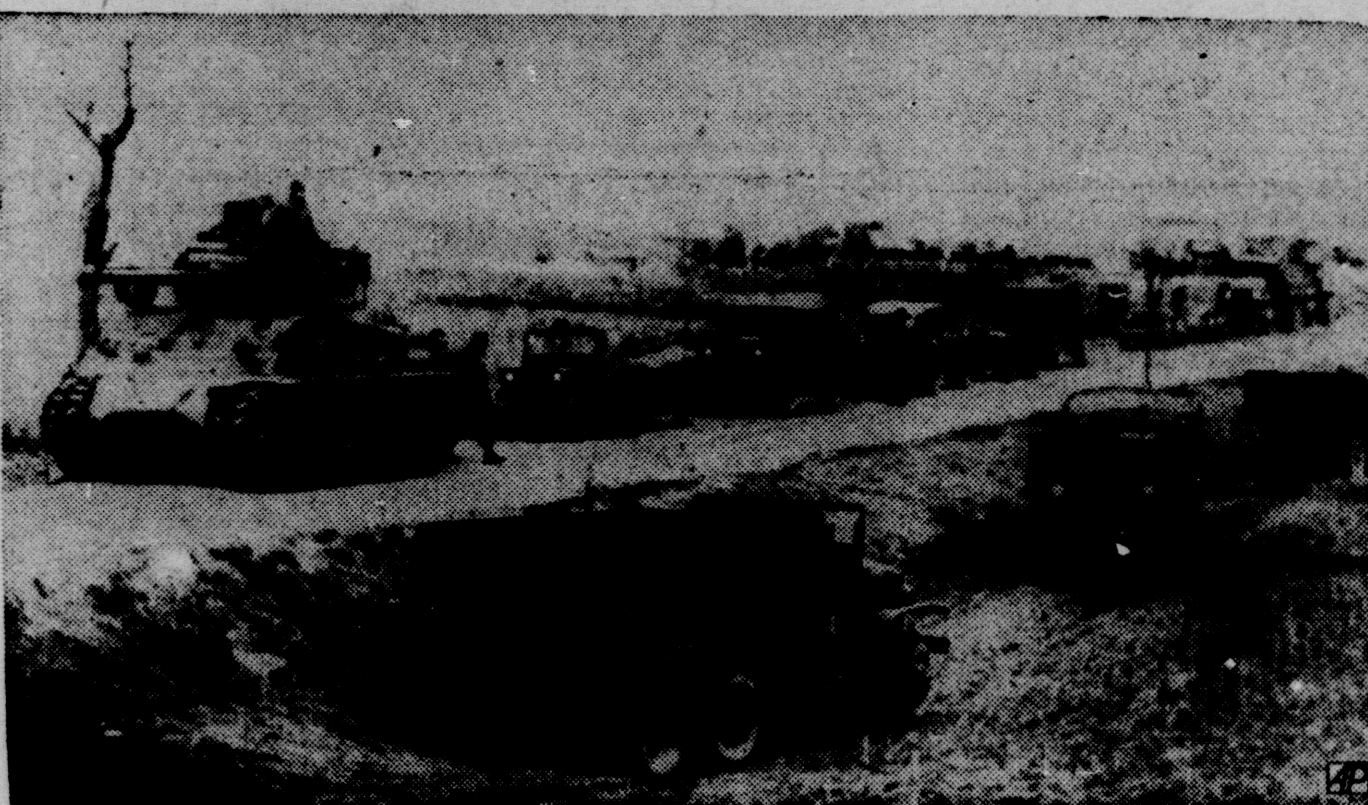

Deputy Detroit Police Superintendent Kennedy Lawrence said the raids crushed the nerve center of the bookie business in the metropolitan area.

Couple Held After Child's Body Found Buried In Yard

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 3 (P) — State police today detained the mother and stepfather of a four-year-old girl whose body was found buried in the family backyard in North Muskegon, Mich., late yesterday.

Lt. Leo Van Conant of the Lansing State Police said the couple, Ted and Crystal Smith, told him they buried little Carol Ann on the evening of Nov. 20.

The pair were quoted by Van Conant as saying they had whipped Carol Ann the day before because she was "unmanageable." In the evening they said, they tied her in her crib and found her dead the next morning.

Senators Call For Ultimatum
To Reds To Get Out Of Korea

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (P) — Some Democratic and Republican senators today called for an ultimatum to Russia and China to get out of Korea — and for use of the atomic bomb if they don't.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) said if Russia and her satellites don't respond to the ultimatum, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United Nations commander in Korea, should be given full power to use the bomb.

But Sen. Wayne Morse (R-Ore.) said he did not think the bomb would answer military needs in Korea itself.

Instead, he said, this country would have to decide quickly whether or not to negotiate with Russia and then "we might drop it (the bomb) someplace."

Asked by a reporter on the National Broadcasting Company's "Meet the Press" television show if he meant it might be dropped on Russia, Morse replied: "Of course, on Russia."

Sen. Harry P. Cain (R-Wash.), appearing with O'Mahoney on Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's NBC television show in New York, agreed that MacArthur should be empowered to use the bomb in Korea if he thinks it necessary.

He said the U. N. commander should have the authority "to use that bomb if in his tactical opinion it would save his armies from destruction."

Later, O'Mahoney again called for an ultimatum to China and Russia during a transcribed "Meet Your Congress" radio broadcast over a Washington station.

He said the ultimatum should be backed by "every weapon in the arsenal of democracy" and that it included the atomic bomb.

Agreeing with O'Mahoney, Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) added: "There's no way to compromise. x x x No common denominator between Christianity and godless Communist imperialism. We must call on every known weapon and every known soldier who will help us."

This, he said, included the Chinese Nationalist troops offered to U. N. forces in Korea by Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek. This offer was refused shortly after the Korean war broke out.

MacArthur Welcomes
Gen. Collins To Tokyo

TOKYO, Monday, Dec. 4 (P) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U. S. Army chief of staff, arrived in Tokyo today for a series of conferences with Gen. MacArthur and other officers in the Far East command.

Collins was accompanied by Maj. Gen. Charles P. Cabell, director of intelligence for the Air Force, and Vice Adm. F. S. Low.

Gen. MacArthur and members of his staff met them at the airport. "Hello, Joe, welcome to Tokyo," he said, throwing an arm about Collins' shoulders.

Acting on a telephone tip, state police found Mr. and Mrs. Smith at the home of his cousin, Nixon E. Smith, in Delhi township of suburban Lansing. Police said the couple were preparing to take off in a rented trailer with their two other small children. State Trooper Bryce Grey said Mrs. Smith told him they planned to go some place out of Michigan. The trooper said Mrs. Smith told him, "We're real sorry it all happened, but we just didn't know what to do."

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 3 (P) — An attractive, auburn-haired woman about 35 years old was shot to death in the lobby of a downtown hotel today as her seven-year-old son looked on.

Detective Lew Hardenbrook said a Collins, Ia., farmer was being sought. The woman registered at the hotel as Mary Grace O'Dell of Duluth, Minn. She had been acting as a housekeeper for Farmer Joe Rogers of Collins for about a month.

New Flood
Threats Rise
In California

[By The Associated Press]
Rivers that threatened to flood parts of California and Nevada, and an Illinois tornado which caused three deaths were grim features of the nation's weekend weather.

At Sacramento, Calif., the Weather Bureau issued flood warnings Sunday to residents of the lowlands near the American and Sacramento rivers. Heavy rain pelted the central and northern parts of the state.

The American river flooded several thousand acres of suburban Sacramento just two weeks ago and was on the rise again. The Sacramento was expected to overflow Sunday night near Red Bluff, about 120 miles north of Sacramento, and Tuesday in the vicinity of Colusa in the central Sacramento valley.

The Russian river, and the Kings river, near Fresno, north of San Francisco, also were rising to danger levels. And the Truckee river, near Reno, was being sandbagged against new flood threats.

Meanwhile, sharply colder weather struck the Great Lakes region and Ohio valley Sunday after a night of thunderstorms which produced a tornado.

Three persons died in the twister which struck Greenville and Mt. Olive in southwestern Illinois. Approximately 20 persons were injured. Authorities at Greenville, which was hardest hit, estimated damage there at about $750,000.

The Dyess family moved into the apartment recently, while their plantation home near here was being remodeled.

The Blodgett boy, son of Dr. and Mrs. Don Blodgett of Osceola, was spending the night with the Dyess boy.

EMMITSBURG, Md., Dec. 3 (P) — A mother and her three children were burned to death today when flames from an exploded oil stove trapped them on the second floor of their log house. The four-room structure burned to the ground.

The victims were Mrs. Grace Elizabeth Willis, 31, and her children, Richard Bernard, 6; Roland Eugene, 3, and Charles Edward, 1.

BOGALUSA, La., Dec. 3 (P) — Five children burned to death and three other persons were burned in a fire which destroyed a rural frame house today.

The fire started at the home of Luther Graves, a negro, when kerosene was thrown on a fire in an open fireplace.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3 (P) — A new dark red, waste-laden blood from the veins. A steel lung gives the blood oxygen. A special pump, no bigger than the human heart, pulses refreshed, bright red blood back into an artery.

The machine can completely devour all the blood around the body's own heart and lungs. This means surgeons could open a bloodless living heart, and have lots of time and full clear vision for new and better kinds of heart operations.

It has worked successfully on dogs, keeping one dog alive for 71 minutes while the spare heart circulated its blood. Dr. Bailey told the Ohio chapter of the American College of Chest Physicians.

The dog's own heart took over its usual job again when the machine was disconnected. The dog recovered completely, he said.

Pair Jailed After 'Winning' In Every Race For 20 Days

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3 (P) — A winner in every race every day of the first 20 days of the current racing season at Hollywood Park — that's the record of Nicolio Gentilly, 60, a marble worker, and his friend, Joseph Diableria, 58, a dishwasher. They're in jail today, booked on suspicion of forgery.

Jess Klein, investigator for the district attorney, arrested the men yesterday. He said a track patron saw Gentilly "doctoring" a ticket in a restroom.

20 Persons Die
In Four Blazes

STEBENVILLE, O., Dec. 3 (P) — Smoke from a fire burning below their second floor apartment killed a family of six today in nearby Dillonvale, O.

The entire family of John Gall, 39, proprietor of Johnny's Inn, suffocated. Dr. John P. Smarrella, coroner, said.

Both Gall, and his wife, Anna, 33, refused to risk jumping from the second floor or to toss their four children to frantic watchers outside. Smarrella added. Flames never reached the apartment.

The Gall family lived above the inn in an apartment. Fire, blamed on a defective refrigerator motor, broke out in the inn before dawn.

OSCEOLA, Ark., Dec. 3 (P) — Five persons died in a fire that destroyed the temporary home of a socially prominent family here early today.

The dead were W. R. Dyess, 27, his wife, the former Martha Jane Limerick of Little Rock, 26; two Dyess children, W. R. Jr., seven, and Richard, three; and Don Blodgett, Jr., seven.

The Dyess family moved into the apartment recently, while their plantation home near here was being remodeled.

The Blodgett boy, son of Dr. and Mrs. Don Blodgett of Osceola, was spending the night with the Dyess boy.

Rau, Wu Meet;
U. N. Assembly
Alerted By U. S.Austin Issues Call
To Deal With War

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (P) — Sir Benegal N. Rau of India met tonight with Red China's Wu Hsiu-Chuan in an attempt to mediate a peaceful settlement of the Korean war.

While India assumed an active role of peace maker in the critical situation, the United States alerted the United Nations General Assembly to be prepared to deal with Red China's intervention in the Korean war.

Sir Benegal was most cautious prior to the meeting with Wu. He said the negotiations "have entered an extremely difficult stage and I prefer not to say anything further at the moment." He expressed doubt that he would have anything for publication after the meeting.

Rau Discounts Rumor
Rau said rumors in diplomatic circles here that Peiping had demanded an Allied withdrawal below the 38th parallel as a preliminary to a peaceful settlement were news to him.

Rau and Wu had an exploratory conference last Friday.

Chen Chiao, a member of the Chinese Communist delegation in charge of protocol, was closeted with Trygve Lie for 30 minutes yesterday. Rau was summoned to the Secretary General's office immediately after Chen left and it is believed arrangements for tonight's talk were made then.

Austin Issues Alert
It is understood that Wu communicated the gist of Friday's conversation to Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai and apparently received an answer telling him to go ahead with further meetings.

The American alert was issued by Ambassador Austin after an all-day conference with Republican Advisor John Foster Dulles and other top aides. He asked Secretary General Lie and Assembly President Nasrallah Entezam of Iran to issue the call.

The U. N. officials immediately ordered a meeting of the 60-nation Political Committee, scheduled for Monday at Lake Success, cancelled.

West Berliners
Defy Red Threat

BERLIN, Monday, Dec. 4 (P) — West Berlin voters defied Communist threats with a record breaking 90.2 per cent turnout in the municipal elections yesterday.

The voters favored the Socialists and backed their coalition city government for a new four-year term, complete unofficial returns showed today.

The Socialist Party of Mayor Ernest Reuter failed to match its 64 per cent majority of 1948, but piled up a handy plurality to remain the dominant party. The Socialists got 44.9 per cent of yesterday's vote. There was no conflict of issues between the parties. All were anti-Communist.

The swarm of ballots cast yesterday despite snow and cold made mockery of the Communist demands that the election be boycotted on the grounds that all eight participating parties were "American war parties."

Etna Erupts Anew
CATANIA, Sicily, Monday, Dec. 4 (P) — New lava flowing from Mt. Etna yesterday imperiled places more than a mile beyond last week's danger area.

Congress, Hands
Full, May Work
Through Jan. 3Rent Control, Taxes
Are 'Must' Measures

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (P) — Congress today found its hands suddenly filled with war-important work and prospects of early adjournment virtually were discarded.

Leaders now expect the "lame duck" session to adjourn just before Christmas — or even grind away right up to Jan. 3 when the new 82nd Congress takes over.

One week ago as the lawmakers arrived to take up where they had left off in September, the outlook was for a session lasting not more than three weeks. China's undeclared war in Korea changed this overnight.

House To Debate Profits Tax
While the men who direct Congress expect no new requests for legislation from President Truman, they already have carded a program heavy enough to keep the lawmakers busy up to December 21.

Rent control, aid to Yugoslavia, taxes and appropriations are listed as "must" measures.

The House starts debate tomorrow on an excess profits tax bill designed to raise $3,400,000,000 in revenue. Its passage is slated for Tuesday or Wednesday. The Senate Finance Committee starts hearings on the bill tomorrow.

Senate Takes Up Rent Bill
The Senate takes up tomorrow a bill to extend for 60 days from December 31 the federal rent control program which expires at the end of this year except in cities electing to keep controls longer.

Hearings on the same bill but with the extension set at 90 days, start tomorrow afternoon before the House Banking Committee.

Both the House and the Senate Appropriations Committees will conduct hearings during the week on the President's request for $17,850,000,000 more for national defense and for the Atomic Energy Commission. The House committee commenced its hearings last Friday and wants to have the bill in shape for full House action within two weeks.

To expedite the emergency money measure, witnesses will shuttle daily between the Senate and the House committees.

Fairchild Employees
Authorize Strike

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 3 (P) — Union employees of the Fairchild Aircraft division here today overwhelmingly authorized a strike to support demands for a wage increase, union officials reported.

President E. T. Michael of Local 842, UAW-CIO, said 99 per cent of those attending the meeting supported the strike authorization.

The contract with the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Co. plant still has about 10 months to run, but negotiations were reopened last Oct. 26 under a contract clause permitting further discussions of wage increases.

Scrap Rubber Shipped To China, O'Connor Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (P) — Sen. O'Connor (D-Md.) said today that 10,500,000 pounds of scrap rubber has been shipped from the U. S. to Red China since the Korean war began and demanded it be halted.

O'Connor said the shipments increased after the outbreak, and added in a prepared statement: "Even if, as is alleged, it is being used only to make sandals, that in itself could be a highly strategic war use, inasmuch as it would enable thousands of Chinese Red soldiers or their supplyline coolies to keep on the march."

Yanks To Take New Positions
South Of Former Red Capital40 U. S. Bombers Attempt To Blast
Escape Path For Trapped Marines

TOKYO, Monday, Dec. 4 (P) — Outnumbered United Nations forces today began a mass withdrawal from Pyongyang to new positions south of the former North Korean capital.

The retreat of thousands of men and their equipment, including U. S. Eighth Army headquarters, continued in Northwest Korea. A protective force to the north still barred the approaching Chinese Communists from the city.

The U. S. Ninth Corps headquarters began moving south this morning. It was to be followed by the U. S. First Corps. Both planned to dig in along a new but as yet undisclosed defense line.

In Northeast Korea, 40 U. S. bombers began an all-day effort to blast a path through six Chinese red regiments for trapped marines and infantrymen to make their way back 50 miles to Hamhung.

Marines Break One Trap
Two U. S. Marine regiments today broke out of a five-day trap on the west side of the Changjin reservoir. Taking heavy losses, they ended a bloody 12-mile retreat to Hagaru at the south tip of the reservoir.

There they joined other marines of the First Division and also elements of two U. S. Seventh Division regiments who had fought out of a similar trap on the east side.

But there was more trouble ahead. Six Chinese regiments were in mountain positions on both sides of the road for six miles south of Hagaru.

Maj. Gen. Earl E. Partridge ordered 40 B-26 light bombers of his Fifth Air Force to clear the way. Partridge instructed that "every enemy ridge, every enemy road and every enemy position be hit and hit hard" by Brig. Gen. Luther W. Sweetzer's 452nd Light Bombardment Wing.

An Air Force spokesman said the Reds were dug in along a twisting mountainous road running south of the reservoir. The B-26s planned to bomb the Red positions all through the day.

U. S. Casualties High
Six Chinese Communist divisions housed both the cut-off marines and U. S. infantrymen who were on the east side of the reservoir.

At times the temperature dropped to 27 degrees below zero. American casualties were high. Qualified senior officers called the entire northeast situation critical.

On the northwestern front, Chinese artillery roared into action. Heavy Red reinforcements were on the move, and spearheads probed only 18 to 20 miles northeast of Pyongyang.

The heaviest fighting, however, was under way in the Changjin reservoir sector, some 35 miles northwest of the east coast industrial center of Hamhung.

Associated Press Correspondent Jack MacBeth reported that powerful Chinese Communist forces were massing for a drive to the twin cities of Hamhung and Hungnam.

If Hamhung should fall, it would further enmesh the trapped U. S. First Marine Division and two regiments of the U. S. Seventh Division.

Pilot Gives Life
To Save Scores

DALLAS, Dec. 3 (P) — A National Guard pilot gave his life today to fly his flaming plane away from scores of Sunday drivers who were watching him take off.

An internal explosion in the F-84 jet flown by First Lt. James Arthur Bradley, Dallas, set the plane afire on the takeoff from nearby Hensley Air Force base.

Officers watching said Bradley could have stopped his takeoff and escaped. But about 100 automobiles, filled with spectators, were parked at the end of the runway just outside the field's boundary.

So he elected to fly the plane over the cars, rather than risk plowing through a wire fence and into them. He crash landed in a thinly populated area just beyond the field as the flames engulfed his plane.

U. S. Navy Plane
Crashes, Killing 4

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 3 (P) — A U. S. Navy plane carrying four passengers crashed on a mountain-side 10 miles southeast of here today. Three men were killed and one was seriously injured. A naval officer who arrived here from Greenville, S. C., said the plane was from Atlantic City, N. J.

Perle Mesta Winner Of AP
"Woman Of The Year" Poll

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (P) — Perle Mesta, Oklahoma-born "hostess with the mostest" who is now U. S. minister to Luxembourg, is named 1950 "Woman of the Year" in the annual Associated Press poll of women's editors of U. S. newspapers.

Mrs. Mesta, famed as Washington's number one party-giver at the time of her appointment in 1949, has surprised critics by settling down to a serious job in her diplomatic post and winning the apparent respect and affection of the Luxembourgers.

The fact that the season's smash musical comedy hit on Broadway concerns the doings of a lady ambassador, however, also has focused the spotlight of public interest on Mrs. Mesta.

This cause-and-effect is reflected in the editors' poll, which overwhelmingly names Ethel Merman, star of the musical "Call Me Madam," as the year's outstanding actress of the legitimate stage, with even a few votes for the uninhibited "Lady Ambassador to Lichtenburg" as woman of the year.

Last year's "Woman of the Year" was Mary Martin, star of the Broadway success, "South Pacific."

Society To Sponsor Film

The WSCS of Centenary Church voted to show the film, "The Littlest Angel," at the next meeting, if it can be obtained. Plans were made at the meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Annie Hardinger, who presided. Roll call was answered with members telling for what they were most thankful during the year.

Devotions, on the Thanksgiving theme, were conducted by Mrs. Esther Hardinger and included group hymns, a scripture lesson, sentence prayers, a solo of "For the Beauty of the Earth," and a Thanksgiving poem. Mrs. Edith Nield gave a reading, "The Shepherd Psalm," and a letter from Carolyn Bennett, student at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., was read by Mrs. Mary Smouse.

The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Esther Hardinger and Mrs. Carrie Diehl. Others present were Mrs. Araminta Hardinger, Mrs. Selma Gillum, Mrs. Leona Bennett, Mrs. Fannie Wilson, Mrs. Ruthella Fey, Mrs. Katherine Funnell, Mrs. Rose Yeargan, Mrs. Powena Hall, Mrs. Mary Wentling, Miss Nyna Fey, Miss Edith Hardinger, Miss Ethel Gillum and Miss Judy Yeargan.

The first official use of postage stamps in the U. S. was sanctioned by Congress in March, 1847.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Simplicity is admired today in everything from buildings to buttons to great personages!

SIMPLICITY is one of the most potent of all charms—and the only perfect setting for your individuality. Excess trimmings and trappings detract from your personality and stifle it.

Realizing that simplicity is admired today in everything from buildings to buttons and great personages, the smart woman of fashion does everything she can to put the power of this disarming quality to work for her.

The Personality Emerges

She makes it a salient characteristic of her appearance, speech and manner. In so doing, her personality emerges polished and smooth to steal the scene in any gathering. She leaves the didoes, dodads and shams to those unforstunates who cover their individuality with false fronts that make each look quite like the other.

Simplicity is never easily achieved. It requires restraint in all things. You must deliberately discard the superficial in dress and manner and just as deliberately cultivate the indispensable.

To keynote your individuality with simplicity, never let a trick fad in clothes sway you away from intrinsic quality of line and fabric. Never let the desire to "dress up" betray you into wearing whimsies unsuited to either your personality or the occasion. Never let your love of jewelry get the better of your discretion.

Do not let new make-up quirks or hair styles rule you; adapt them to your own use and make sure you dominate every fashion you accept.

Source Of All Admiration
If simplicity is to characterize your manner, your courtesy cannot be confined to a chosen few, but it will always be in evidence and always of the same quality. The near-great will never awe you, and formality will never smother your warmth. Then, your manner will be the same as that of the real great of this world, whose charming simplicity draws everyone toward them—they never cause anyone dismay.

If you wish to be beautiful, if you wish to be admired, how to the line of simplicity. It's the quality that immediately commands respect, and respect is the cornerstone of all true admiration.

Tomorrow: Is your charm languishing?

Contributions For Lepers To Be Sent Tuesday

The first $50 of the goal of $100 for the Blind Club at the national leprosy, Carville, La., will be sent Tuesday, Mrs. E. W. Yates said last night.

Contributions have been received from individuals as well as from Bible classes, the local chairman said. Mrs. Yates urges others contribute to the fund for a special Christmas celebration for the blind and those so crippled that they cannot participate in the regular organizational promotions.

Library Survey Report To Be Given Next Week

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners was notified yesterday by the committee making a survey of the library needs of the county that a report will be made during the week of December 13.

The group, which comprises parent-teacher associations, homemakers clubs and various other civic groups, is advocating the formation of a mobile library service for rural areas and communities which do not have libraries.

The cost of such a project is estimated at over $20,000. The committee reports that 75 per cent of the county's population does not have adequate library service.

Grand Champ Steer Brings $12 A Pound

CHICAGO (INS) — The sleek grand champion steer of the 51st International Livestock Exposition brought a record $12 a pound at auction and enough money to make a dream come true for a tall Texas lad.

The prize hereford, named the "Big Spring Special," by his owner 19-year-old Lloyd Robinson of Big Spring, Tex., was sold for $12,300 to the Albert Pick Hotel Corporation.

The auction price for the 1,025 pound white-faced steer was 50 cents a pound more than last year's record price of $11.50.

Lloyd, who paid a mere $140 for the steer and raised the deep red animal on his parents' cotton farm, intends to use the money to buy a 640-acre farm and a herd of 25 cows and calves. He said jubilantly:

"Who said dreams don't come true? I've wanted a farm and cattle of my own as long as I can remember. 'Big Spring Special' has made it possible at last."

The hotel firm will exhibit the burly champion steer beginning Sunday in the lobby of the Congress Hotel in Chicago. But it will be a short-lived limelight for the hereford. It will eventually wind up as prize steaks on platters at hostelryes owned by the hotel throughout the country.

Also purchased by the hotel firm was the grand champion carload of steers. The 15 head of cattle, owned by Russell Bucks, 30, Argo, Ia., sold

Blinded Flier 'Talked Down' To Safe Landing On Carrier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy related today how Ensign Edward D. Jackson, Jr., Memphis, Tenn., was "talked down" to a safe landing aboard a carrier off Korea while "blinded and at the controls of a damaged jet fighter."

It was the first time the feat had been accomplished in the Navy.

Ensign Jackson's plane was flying at 350 miles an hour during strikes over the Han river, south of Seoul, when it struck a "booby trap" cable strung by North Koreans to prevent low level bombing and strafing, the Navy said.

Jackson was knocked momentarily unconscious, the right wingtip of his F4F Grumman Panther plane received the latter degree, he did full-time graduate work at Cornell University, where he received a degree of doctor of philosophy.

Immediately preceding his assignment with the Air Force, he was associate professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina.

The late "Mammy" singer, Al Jolson, made the first full-length talking picture in 1927.

was shattered and the windshield and plane canopy were smashed.

Some 20 seconds after he blacked out Jackson regained consciousness, the account continued, to find his eyes clouded with blood from face cuts and his vision almost 100 per cent obliterated. The plane was climbing in a steep turn.

Jackson leveled off his plane, reduced speed to ease wind force in the open cockpit and radioed his wingman, Ensign Dayl E. Crow, Oklahoma City, of his plight. In close formation then Crow guided Jackson by radio the 120 miles back to the carrier Philippine Sea.

Crow jockeyed the blinded pilot and his plane into position for a landing approach and on the carrier's deck Lieutenant (junior grade) L. K. Bruestle, Pelican Rapids, Minn., the landing signal officer, started giving Jackson landing instructions by radio.

The jet eased to the deck, landing slightly to one side in what was otherwise a "normal" landing, the Navy said.

A flight surgeon climbed to the cockpit, wiped the blood from Jack-

Breaks In LaVale Sewage Lines Creates Problem

A meeting has been called by Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, for Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the LaVale Fire Hall to discuss the health hazard and public nuisance created in a section of LaVale through faulty sewage disposal.

Dr. Frantz said that three breaks in a six-inch line in the Narrows Park area and running westward toward LaVale poses a serious public health problem. None of the breaks have been caused by road work or other construction.

Determined to correct the situation, Dr. Frantz has called the meeting and invited residents of the area affected to be present. It is hoped to arrange for a solution to the problem at the meeting.

In the event no solution is found, at least 64 court orders will be sought. Officials of the Allegany County Board of Education have also been invited to attend the session as the LaVale elementary school is hooked on to the sewer line in question.

No public sewers in LaVale or Narrows Park meet the standards of the State Department of Health.

according to J. B. Dowling, sanitarian for the State. Since July 1 septic tanks have been required for all new homes.

It is hoped the 64 homes and school officials can arrange to have repairs made in the sewer line. The situation has grown steadily worse, due to a large increase in the number of homes in the LaVale area and the worsening condition of the sewer line which has been built in sections since Finley C. Hendrickson had the first sewer constructed nearly a half century ago.

How can you pass up prices like these?

AS we've been saying for quite a spell — "Whatever your price range—Better buy Buick."

But maybe we'd better get down to brass tacks, as to just what this suggestion means.

In the lower-price field, this has been happening:

Four out of ten Buick SPECIALS—bought by people with a car to trade in—have been bought by folks who formerly drove one of the so-called "low-priced three." They found they could afford a Buick!

In the fine-car field, something even more impressive has happened:

Four out of five people who looked at a ROADMASTER and another very distinguished automobile decided in favor of ROADMASTER!

So — whatever your price range, take a look at our prices — and at what you get for your money.

What you get is the thrill of owning the greatest Buick of all time — as registered by record-breaking sales.

What you get is power and style and comfort and performance that are hard to match in any other automobile.

More specifically — you get the power-with-thrift of Buick's famous Fireball high-compression engine — a style that stands out in any company — a ride with the comfort of coil springs on every wheel — and performance that makes you feel like the head man on any highway.

Better come in today — and see what can be done about getting quick delivery.

Treating A Symptom

Demands for the removal of Dean Acheson as Secretary of State are mounting in crescendo. Continued pressure is being exerted upon President Truman to remove Acheson from his cabinet. His continued tenure in his post will be given a complete airing in Congress if he is not kicked out. Some observers think the matter will come to a head during the lame duck session.

Truman insists he will refuse to ask for Acheson's resignation, and that the latter will remain in office as long as he is President. Truman said the same thing about Louis Johnson, but Johnson was kicked out without ceremony a few days later. Johnson was Truman's campaign fund raiser in 1948, when no one else could be persuaded to take the job, and was appointed Secretary of Defense by Truman as a reward for his labors.

While few will hold a brief for either Johnson or Acheson, their removal from office is in the nature of treating a symptom rather than the disease. Johnson was charged with being lax in the national defense effort of which he had charge. Acheson is remembered for his statement, "I will not turn my back on Alger Hiss!" is alleged to have been too soft with the Communists, and was one of the architects of the nation's disastrous Far Eastern policy.

But in either case there must have been more than one man involved. Each official had a following in the government, and that following is still around. Discharging the leader will not cure the malady.

Any boss, in public or private life, is responsible for the assistants with which he surrounds himself. President Truman is noted for his loyalty to his cronies. But public opinion will force him to oust Acheson.

Our Materialism

Travelers returning from the East and Near East often report that the peoples of those lands have inaccurate and uncomplimentary ideas about the nature of the American people. The most frequently heard declaration is that we are hopelessly materialistic, interested only in comfort, machinery and wealth, and lacking in the finer culture of civilization. This impression, it is pointed out, does us no good in the contest for the sympathies of the Asiatic nations.

It is our own fault that this misconception is so widely held. When we compare America with other nations, we usually do so on the basis of material achievements. When we offer help and advice to other peoples, it is most often done with a view toward improving their material standard of living. An exception in purpose is the work of religious missions, but even the missionaries have seldom been able to resist the urge to improve the physical lot of the people among whom they work. And when taken to task for our interest in material things we are prone to admit apologetically that it is so, that we are materialists and not the equals of Orientals in the strange thing called culture.

But there is an essential and usually overlooked difference in thinking. The Eastern culture so often admired is that of the scholars, the intellectuals. The material comforts of American life and ways are those of the whole people, not just of the top layer. We have a highly developed culture, too, and we can be proud of it. And we should not forget to point out that a lack of interest in the material well-being of the mass of the people is not necessarily a mark of high culture.

Party Boss: Who?

The Department of Justice has undertaken to prove that the Communist Party of the United States is substantially dominated and controlled by the Russian government and the Communist Party of Russia. This may not be easy, and officials estimate that the actions involved will require two years. It is one thing to be convinced that such is the situation; it is quite another thing to prove it with legally acceptable evidence.

This has been a central question of the whole furore about Communists and communism in recent years. The charge that Russia is the real party boss has been made repeatedly, and has been repeatedly denied by the party leaders. Most Americans believe that the charge is true; the top party men, of course, know whether or not it is true. What do the rank-and-file followers believe? Are they really ready to betray America? Or do they really believe that their party merely admires Russia without being bound to it?

If the Department of Justice can prove its charge, that doubtless will have little effect on what the party and its leaders say, either here or abroad. But it ought to be an influence among the members and sympathizers. An American Communist or fellow traveler, unless stupid enough to disregard the finding, would have to turn against either communism or America. Non-Communists see that choice now; it would be most helpful if the Communists among us can be led to see it.

Bidders Take All?

Is television to be handed over bodily to commercial interests, to be used by them to advance their own particular ends—which are not likely to be altruistic, however legitimate they may be? Or is this new medium of mass communication to serve broad public purposes such as education?

This problem is before the Federal Communications Commission right now. It has been put there by the Joint Committee for Educational Television, acting for a number of organizations interested in using television as a means of education. Witnesses for the committee testified before the commission this week and they made it clear that the issue is real.

There should be channels for educational programs, the committee's spokesmen told the commission. Ootherwise a valuable teaching aid will be lost to educators—and there is no question that it is a good tool for bringing knowledge and enlightenment to children or adults. If television is to be made to serve this useful purpose, the commission must act soon. It is already late in the day. A little later and it will be too late.

The position taken by the committee appears to be unchallengeable. Surely all of the air should not be sold to the highest bidder—some part of it should be kept to help build the kind of citizenry a free nation must have in order to stay free.

Those in other parts of the world who would doubt America's anticipation of a long, secure future would check over our life insurance purchases. The $2,570,000 bought in October was 38 per cent more than in the same period last year.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Personal Appearance Reveals Attitude

PERSONAL appearance often reflects the morale and emotional state of an individual. Those with feelings of inferiority, for example, often dress in a sloppy manner; their hair is unkempt and the finger nails are dirty. The same can be said of neurotic men and women.

A daily bath, a smooth shaven face, and brushed teeth are important features of any mental hygiene program. Well groomed hair, clean nails, polished shoes, and immaculate clothes fall into the same category. Those who are decked up in this fashion not only look good but feel good. It gives them a sense of well being and enhances their worth in the eyes of their neighbors. In other words, a good appearance is a morale builder which reminds us of the saying that there is nothing wrong with a woman that a new hat cannot cure. Furthermore, we should take pity on those who have to look at us; neatness and trimness give the beholder a lift.

One of my acquaintances was so nonchalant about his appearance that he came to school looking as if he had put on the nearest clothing he could reach. He often wore white shoes in winter and his coat and trousers seldom matched and were so wrinkled that it is doubtful if they ever had been pressed. He gave everyone the impression that he had no concern for such petty and unimportant details; that he was too busy to give any attention to his personal appearance. He had more than ample means so there was no financial reason for his habits.

Several years later he committed suicide. But there might have been another explanation for his attitude on clothing. Many young persons feel insecure in their dealings with others and they are afraid to compete on equal terms lest they fail. In the circumstances they blame their appearance. Looking back, it is possible that anxiety and a feeling of inadequacy might have been responsible for his strange attitude. After all, he had everything to look forward to, yet he gave up the struggle.

Others are afraid that by improving upon nature they may be forced to assume a responsibility they do not want. A young woman, for example, may dread marriage and to avoid it unconsciously shrinks from making herself attractive to the opposite sex. The sloppy appearance of the teenager immediately after World War II has been attributed to the feeling of insecurity that was rife in that period.

But the foundation probably goes deeper. Adolescence is a paradoxical period. Boys and girls of this age alternate between adult and childish behavior. Girls especially will dress up in a sophisticated manner one day and go back to jeans and flares the next. They want to impress the boys but find the task of acting grown up too difficult. Within a few years they mature sufficiently to dress and act like human beings.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses pain in the upper abdomen.

GEOGRAPHIC TONGUE

V. T. writes: My tongue has lines on it that look like a map of Europe. Does this mean that I am not eating right? I am 16 years old.

REPLY
This may be so-called geographic tongue, which is partial to adolescents. Occasionally anemia or a nutritional deficiency is responsible and I would suggest that you have your mother take you to the family physician for examination. Meanwhile, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on tongue patches and fissures.

QUESTIONABLE

Mrs. E. M. writes: Is there such a thing as menopausal arthritis? I am 43 and am troubled with arthritis of the shoulder and neck.

REPLY
This is a moot question because arthritis is prevalent during the same period of life as the menopause. It is difficult to say whether they are related or coincidental.

NO SKEETER TROUBLE

M. B. writes: I'm not bothered by mosquitoes and my friends tell me it is because I'm a sourball. I would like to get this cleared up once and for all.

REPLY

The swelling and itching that follow insect bites represents an allergic reaction. Those who are not sensitive to mosquitoes may not be aware of the bites and believe that mosquitoes do not like them. You may fall into this category. On the other hand it is possible that insects are attracted by skin odors. To my knowledge there are no data on the type of odor that is preferred. But your freedom from discomfort does not warrant your being called a sourball.

U.N. health and welfare authorities report that by November most of some 300,000 South Korean refugees had returned to their home areas.

EVERYTHING GOING ACCORDING TO PLANS

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Washington Never Catches Its Breath Between Wars; Truman Sees Same Peacetime Callers; Secretary Acheson Seems Tired And Discouraged.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Sometimes I think Washington has a hard time catching its breath between wars. Around the corner from where I live is an old barracks, built to house Northern nurses during the Civil war. Built hastily, it was to be torn down after the Civil war, but the city grew, housing space was scarce. It is still there, revamped, cut up into apartments. . . . Down New York and Maryland avenues are other barracklike buildings built during World War I, also to have been torn down afterward. Again the city grew, office space was scarce. The buildings are still there—ugly, cold in winter, hot in summer, the remnants of war. . . . Behind the White House, along the Lincoln Memorial reflecting pool, in Potomac Park are more temporary buildings built during World War II, again supposed to be torn down thereafter. They are still there, scarring the landscape like the scars of war. . . . Now, with the news from Korea—more government expansion, more broken homes, more ruined lives, more war.

Washington is a paradoxical place in wartime. On the surface nobody is rattled, nobody seems to give a hang. . . . Harry Truman has about the same list of callers, many from Missouri—Judge Bennett Clark, formerly of St. Louis, Bill Boyle of Kansas City, Congressman Bolling of Kansas City, Douglas Fairbanks of Hollywood, Alaskan Delegate Bartlett, not of Kansas City; the Savings and Loan Association of Kansas City; his friend, Perle Mesta of Oklahoma and Luxembourg; John Bierwirth, who distills Old Granddaddy Old Taylor, Mr. Vernon, Old Oryb and other noted whiskies; Dr. F. W. Olson of Kansas City, Mrs. India Edwards of the Democratic National Committee. . . . General Bradley and the Joint Chiefs of Staff also call, but not as frequently as the folks from Kansas City. . . . The President is a worried man, but outwardly he doesn't show it. . . . He gives the impression of a man who waits for problems to come to him, not one who reaches out to solve questions before they become problems.

Along sleepy F Street—not far from the White House, police banished cars and pedestrians. The President was dining out—at the swank 1925 F Street Club. . . . Jokester George Allen was there, also "Me Madam" Perle Mesta; Senator Tydings, not glum over his defeat in Maryland; millionaire tea-totaller Bob Kerr of Oklahoma, whose natural-gas bill Truman vetoed; glamorous Madame Caffritz; Col. Bob Guggenheim; amiable Leslie Biffle. . . . Songbird Rosalind Courtwright sang for the President, despite the fact that her pianist was belatedly barred by the Secret Service and sent back to New York. (His wife once wrote for the Daily Worker.) Eddie MacIntyre, pianist for NBC, had to pinch hit at the last minute, but the President helped out by playing the piano too. . . . Folks lined F Street when the President went home at 11 p. m. During the long years of the Roosevelt administration the President didn't go out to dinner, so they were curious. . . . Newsmen, also curious, also waited. One asked the President: "What do you think of the Korean situation?" "I don't think," he snapped, and entered his car. . . . Flash bulbs clutter the carpets of the State department. Klieg lights, newswire cameras are focused on a desk in front of Dean Acheson's office. He is making a speech. . . . The Secretary of State looks tired, discouraged, his voice sounds beaten. The pep is gone. He reads the lines, but there is no oomph behind the words. . . . Before making the speech he has to stage a dress rehearsal for the newscasts, for the stills, then for the radio. . . . Previously Acheson appeared privately before Senate solons—like a professor before a blackboard. Meticulous, patient, almost too precise, he explained: "There is a good deal of evidence that the main target of Soviet domination is still Europe. The intention may be to so divert and weaken the U. N. forces in Korea that the strengthening of the Atlantic Pact nations may be neglected. If that is allowed to occur, then communist armies may overrun Europe. . . . Senator 'Long Tom' Connally of Texas let his cigar go out. . . . Wisconsin's Alex Wiley chewed his nervously without lighting it.

Lights burn late in the Pentagon these days. Lights also burn in the State department. They even burn late in the embassies. . . . Clerks and stenographers forget to begin powdering their noses at 4:25 every afternoon in the Army and Navy departments. . . . Up on Capitol Hill, Republican Senators Wherry and McCarthy show their teeth in the direction of the White House, growl that General MacArthur is not to be fired. . . . Maybe this is an attack to prepare for defense. Maybe the Senators have heard the real facts regarding MacArthur's polite ignoring of Washington instructions to keep away from the Chinese dams on the Yalu, to maintain a 40-mile neutrality zone along the Manchurian border. . . . Whispers about MacArthur are rife among the diplomats, because the diplomats know how London, Paris and other U. N. allies urged a neutral zone along the Yalu. They also know that the State department feared exactly what has now happened—repeatedly warned MacArthur of danger from China. . . . "But how can you fire a prominent general in wartime?" asks one diplomat. "We fired Marshal Joffre in the first war," replied a Frenchman, "and the British fired Lord Kitchener. . . . And Abe Lincoln fired a whole row of generals," suggested an American. "He fired McDowell after Bull Run. He fired General McClelland twice. He fired General Joe Hooker after the defeat at Chancellorsville, Burnside after the defeat at Fredericksburg, and Pope after the second battle of Bull Run. Finally, he fired Mead when he failed to pursue Lee after Gettysburg. . . . But," admitted the American, "when a general has built up such a powerful block of Senate votes, he can probably thumb his nose at Washington indefinitely."

Another elderly general, George Marshall, talked in serious tones before the Women's Press Club. He also looked tired, seemed discouraged. . . . At the age of 70 you can't blame him. . . . In guarded words—because one general doesn't criticize another—he gave a hint of what he thought of MacArthur's intelligence. "This great aggressor action," he said referring to Chinese attacks, "because of the preparation that would have to be gone through to get such a force and deploy it—makes it evident that it has been long prepared and long intended. . . . But General Marshall, old as he is, is tired as he must be, had some words of encouragement. He paid tribute to the American people, their courage, their understanding, their ability to work together. "When the nazis were at our door," he said, "the situation was saved by one thing—the reaction of the American people."

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

NSC 68

A single, formidable statistic tells how the new crisis in Korea has aroused Washington to fear a third world war. Within one week the administration planners have increased the 1951-52 allocations for military and other aid to our allies to somewhere between $20 and $24 billions. And it is doubted whether even these immense sums will be enough to rebuild the defenses of the West in time.

Thus ends the story that began last winter with the drafting of what is perhaps the most significant of all post-war American policy papers, National Security Council Directive No. 68.

NSC 68, as this remarkable document is called in the inner sancta of the government, was initiated by Secretary of State Dean Acheson. It expressed the State Department's rising concern over the military imbalance between the free world and the Soviet empire. It called for a great Western defense effort, to be completed within four years. And it acknowledged that this great effort of defense would entail heavy sacrifices in the United States.

Unfortunately, when the President and National Security Council signed and sealed NSC 68 last March, they were merely making a declaration of good intentions. The ink was hardly dry on the document before it was deprived of all meaning by the President's incurable optimism and former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson's brisk pursuit of the opposite policy. All through the spring, the leaders of the American government continued like a flock of silly sheep grazing their way greedily toward a fearful precipice.

Document Becomes Dominant

The phase of aimless complacency was abruptly ended by the Soviet aggression in Korea. There was a further interlude; but the dismissal of Louis Johnson and appointment of Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall at length gave fullest meaning to NSC 68. The once-disregarded document dominated the whole scene, and all its clauses, time schedule, became the policy makers' law. We had a plan; we were working to it; there was hope.

Then, once again, the busy hand of history struck out ruthlessly. The Chinese aggression in Korea transformed NSC 68's four-year time schedule, formerly regarded as a miracle of fact facing, into a sad proof that the facts had not been faced. And now NSC 68 has been rudely amended. The defense time schedule has been cut to a year and a half; the projected outlays have been increased proportionally; and the sacrifices ahead of us have been acknowledged to be greater than imagined. Yet even these amendments are no longer thought of as guarantees of our security, but only as the poor best that we can do.

This sorry tale of slow awakening and tenuous terror is a work of parable of much larger applicability. In Europe, also, our allies have been straining at gnats when they ought to have been straining at the leash. The spirit there was typified, until a few days ago, by British War Minister John Strachey's statement

Winter Business Outlook Is Subject For Babson

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Dec. 4 — The prospect of higher taxes and credit restrictions is casting a shadow over the business outlook for the coming winter. These apply to automobiles, refrigerators and television sets; but not as to most consumer items.

During recent months we know that the output of industry has exceeded consumption. Automobiles and trucks have been produced at the unprecedented rate of ten million per year; over 20 per cent of all units now on the road. The recent rate of home construction has exceeded any previously recorded annual output by over 50 per cent. Scarce buying lifted the sale of household appliances to unprecedented heights during the summer.

However, we find already that reaction has set in, with lumber prices breaking during the last few weeks. The sales of many consumer items are back to pre-June levels. New construction is currently off sharply. We know that the easy credit policies of the federal government agencies have artificially stimulated home building. With the tightening up of credit controls further cut-backs will continue. Recent increases in bank loans outstanding have been largely siphoned off into consumer credit expansion. This caused a tremendous boom in the purchase of consumer goods during recent months. Much stricter credit regulations will certainly have a depressing effect on the inflationary spiral. Now is no time to buy everything in sight.

Outlook For Defense Spending
Defense orders in 1951 will undoubtedly maintain high employment, at least during the coming winter. Due to the allocation of certain materials in short supply being funneled into defense activities, business profits will not be uniformly good. Dislocations will take place. This will create shortages of materials throughout the nation which can have an adverse effect on the normal flow of business and profits. Government bureaucrats do queer things.

Investors who search for an inflation hedge in common stocks should watch their step. The Dow-

Jones industrial stock average is higher than it has been for the last 20 years. More burdensome taxes during 1951 will have an adverse effect on earnings. Many companies fully converted from civilian to military production will have their manufacturing margins cut. War stocks are certainly at their peak. Don't forget what happened during the renegotiation period of 1946-47.

Government policy makers are now pouring water over the inflationary fire on which they were dumping gasoline only a short time ago. This vacillating policy requires careful diversification of investment funds during the coming winter. Have less than half of the total funds in common stocks. For this half buy only securities of companies that make some money both during good times and bad times; and where the management is of high character. Buy no bonds except convertible bonds. Have the other half of your investment funds in cash, savings accounts, government bonds, etc., awaiting more favorable buying opportunities later.

Political Outlook
No one in this world has gotten something for nothing for any great length of time. I should, therefore, like to point out that we are heading for some very serious trouble in this country unless employees improve their output to compensate for increases in wage rates; otherwise, future increases in wages will prove an illusion. Subsidies given one section mean taking wealth away from another section. In the long run employers are only cutting their own throats by charging too high prices.

Honest value for goods and services should be the aim of us all. Regimentation is not the answer to our troubles. The planners, whether they be in Washington, London or Moscow, never create wealth—they do it to re-distribute the fruits of other peoples' labor. This is not treating one's neighbors fairly. Basically what really counts most of all is how we treat one another. Only through an economy based on the teachings of Jesus can we hope to maintain and improve our splendid standard of living.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Errors By Commission

THE wise man, when he faces a crisis in his life, steps back and asks himself, "What have I done?" He re-examines his life; he seeks out his faults; but most of all, he probes for a way to cut his losses, to reverse his processes and to straighten himself out.

Only fools blame the environment, the times, the breaks, luck. No one gets very far in life by sulking and scheming. Only an imbecile devotes himself to covering up mistakes by new lies, until his structure collapses on his head. A lie has a curious way of fighting to the surface.

What is true of individuals is true of nations. The crisis appears. At that moment, a nation either blindly and stiffneckedly pursues the course which produced the crisis, or its best minds devote themselves to a re-examination of conduct with a view to rechanneling its structure.

Since 1939, it is apparent, beyond doubt, that great errors have been made by the leaders of our nation. These errors need to be re-examined, not to blame the living or the dead, but to safeguard the future. I shall here list only a few demonstrable errors.

1. Our association with Soviet Russia in the war without prior stipulations as to peace terms. It that social gains must not be surrendered to defense needs; by the French quibbling about German participation in the defense of Europe, and by the reluctance of the Germans to defend themselves.

And until a few days ago, we responded to these nervous shrinkings with shrinkings of our own. The Defense Department refused to send Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower across the Atlantic as Western supreme commander until the Franco-German difference was settled. The State department recently requested Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge to fly to Paris, and there to warn friends in the French Assembly that the French attitude toward Germany would endanger military aid for Europe in the next Congress. But the diplomats would not themselves be tough, any more than the soldiers would be bold.

Now, on the contrary, a grim spirit of urgency informs Washington. There is talk of a stern warning to the French and Germans, that they must both enter fully into the defense of Europe, or expect no help from us. There is talk, even, of sponsoring a scheme of Franco-German union. Concurrently, the plans for foreign aid are more than doubled, and the doubts about sending Eisenhower to Europe are all resolved. But meanwhile the crisis in Korea, with its implied threat to every European, has divided and half-paralyzed our allies. And thus it now seems doubtful whether all this urgency in Washington will soon gain the desired results abroad.

There is only one lesson to learn from this welter of unhappy portents. Weak leadership, appealing to our national self-indulgence, has brought us into deadly peril. Now we have only one recourse—to offer the free world leadership that is strong, utterly selfless, relentlessly firm. That way, if we do not lose heart, we may yet win through.

is suggested that there was no time to work out a full peace program. That is a coverup. There was ample time to outline the general terms of our participation.

2. The lend-lease agreements gave no ample protections to the United States. Lend-lease to a large degree won the war for Soviet Russia. We contributed $11,000,000,000 to the up-building of Soviet Russia's industrial and military strength. Peacetime industrial equipment should not have been provided.

3. Teheran (November, 1943) represents the abnegation of American control of American decisions in foreign affairs. At Teheran the United States gave Soviet Russia, then weak, a blank check in Europe and Asia.

4. Teheran belied the Cairo declaration made about five days earlier. Both the Cairo declaration and the report on the Teheran conference were issued simultaneously on December 1, 1943. But on that date, the Cairo declaration had already been nullified by Teheran. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin, on that date, established a historic lie. For that our blood is being shed in Korea.

5. Roosevelt should not have gone to Yalta, because he was a dying man. He lacked the physical or moral strength to meet the challenge of empire.

6. During the war years we were in association with Soviet Russia as an ally, but it was never necessary to accept Communists. It was the Charley-good-fellow attitude that made it possible for Americans and aliens who were serving as Russian agents to infiltrate our government in high positions. The existence of the Harold Ware cell was known to President Roosevelt in 1939. He never acted. In fact, such agencies as the FBI were forbidden to arrest known and effective Russian spies.

7. It was a grievous error to make it impossible for the atomic energy authorities to dismiss suspects without proof. A man had no rights to work there. It was a privilege, to be withdrawn at will. Furthermore, Acheson was one of a body that agreed to write a report. He was only a writer in this respect. The report on the future of the use of atomic energy should have been a closely guarded secret, otherwise we lost bargaining power. The so-called Acheson-Lillienthal report was issued and publicized under shameful circumstances. When Baruch assumed the job of negotiation at the United Nations, he was plagued by this report.

The abandonment and betrayal of Chiang-Kai-Shek by the State Department from 1944 when he was still fighting, to this moment, when he is still to fight, is one of the most grievous errors in all history. It was designed originally by Soviet Russia and carried out by Russian agents in the State Department, among whom the most publicized is Alger Hiss. A vast and untruthful campaign to justify this treason to America was conducted by the State Department.

After Soviet Russia had won a complete victory in China, Great Britain accepted the role of appeaser which the American State department initiated. That policy produced the Korean war.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3 (INS)—Never in my many years of columnizing have I been more thrilled than when Jack Warner telephoned me that he has cleared the way with the War Department and with Col. Joseph Kelly, commander of Travis Air Base, to make "Operation Starlift." That's what Col. Kelly calls the stars who go to Fairfield, Calif., to entertain our troops. Jack said: "I was so touched and interested in your column and broadcast about the fine work the Hollywood Coordinating Committee is doing in furnishing entertainment to the boys flying in and out of the war zone—I've decided to make a picture on this theme. Every important star on our lot will be recruited."

If my column and radio show helped Jack make this decision, I am deeply proud. Not so much for the small part Shirley Temple, Margaret Whiting, Pat O'Brien and I may have played—but because I know what such a film will mean to the parents of our boys. They will be able to see, as we did, what tender care is given the wounded, and what a wonderful boost in morale is given to men flying to the fighting front.

At the time Mercedes McCambridge won her Academy Award for "All the King's Men" she told me: "I promised Bob Rossen to make another picture whenever he wanted me. I feel I owe this Oscar to his patience with me."

Now Mercedes is keeping good that promise. She'll star in "The Octopus," Frank Norris' sensational novel of 50 years ago, for Bob. "The Octopus," the famous story of the battle of the wheat farmers with the railroads, was considered, along with "The Pit," also by Norris one of the top novels of that era. Of course, I can't remember that far back—or can I?

Eleanor Holm, who, before her marriage to Billy Rose, was a swimming champ and a movie actress of photogenic charm, is returning to the screen. She hasn't made a picture since she married Rose, who has plenty of money to keep her in the style to which she is accustomed.

Eleanor has the lead in the screen version of Percec Molnar's play, "If You're An Actor, Act." It's one of six short stories to be filmed in the spring in Hollywood by Jed Harris under the single title of "Sextet." Couldn't be that Harris is doing a copy-cat of "Quartet," could it?

Chit-chat: Greta Garbo talked to several of her Hollywood friends from New York and said that she was terrified on her first flight east. It just happened that she flew when all the storms were so bad. Her plane couldn't land in New York and she had to motor from Newark into Manhattan.

She was so shaken over the whole thing that she's gone to the country to try to get herself together.

John Wayne leads the men and Betty Grable the women in the showmen's trade review poll of exhibitors for the most popular stars of 1950. Yep—here we go on the annual lists again.

Behind Wayne comes Jimmy Stewart, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Clifton Webb—Clifton climbing from 12th spot the year before to 5th in the new voting.

Following Queen Betty (retaining her throne for the third year) comes Esther Williams, Betty Hutton, June Allyson and Barbara Stanwyck in the order named.

After fainting on the set of "Rich, Young and Pretty," Jane Powell took four days off the picture as a precaution against losing her expected baby and will not return to work until tomorrow.

Bye Bye Byline

I may feel differently about it one of these days, but as of this writing—propped up in bed and with a magnum of morphine sloshing around in my veins—I've about made up my mind to stop writing this column.

For the past year my doctor has been waving blood counts and cardiograms at me, and hinting that all work and no play makes Jack a dead boy. He's been telling me that I no longer had the bounce to cope with all the chores and deadlines breathing down my neck—that the day was past when I could dance at half a dozen weddings simultaneously. Up to now I haven't paid him much mind, but my current bout with the miseries has finally brought me around to his way of thinking.

And isn't because the operation I recently underwent was such a much-matter of fact it was pretty much run of the scalp and, outside of the pain involved, nothing to be too concerned about. But I began to get plenty concerned a week ago when I found that, for the first time in my 51 November, I wasn't snapping back the way I should—that the ever-lovin' elastic wasn't there any more. A few years ago I would have been yelling for tiffin and telephone before the anesthetic wore off, but today, three weeks after the patch-up job, I've still got a headful of fog and a skunkful of ache.

The decision to say good-bye to my byline has been a tough one to make. For almost five years now this column has provided most of the fun and focus of my life, and emotionally it has meant more to me than anything I ever tackled. I've watched it grow from a paid ad in a New York daily to a feature syndicated in more than 2,000 papers (counting weeklies), and naturally an old show-off like me doesn't like to leave the stage with that big an audience in the house. But if it has to be a choice between hoopla and hypertension, I guess I know which side my bed is buttered on.

Before stashing my typewriter away, however, I'd like to give out with a few thank-yous to the gentlemen of the press who have put up with my verbal vagaries for the past 50-odd months. First, foremost and fulsomely, I want to express my gratitude to John Wheeler, bossman of The Bell Syndicate, who wet-nursed this column from a foible to a feature. Second, I'd like to say much obliged to the Dominion News Bureau which handled the Canadian distribution. Ditto, Editors' Press which—Heaven only knows how—translated my pop-eyed prose into Spanish and Portuguese for the Latin American trade. And a double ditto, to Farnham Dudgeon of Western Newspaper Union who was largely responsible for its small-town circulation, and John Dawson of the London Feature Service who so brilliantly merchandized it in Europe and in the far crannies of the Empire. Most of all, though, I want to thank the dear hearts and gentle people who now and then have made room for me at their breakfast and dinner tables. I doubt if I've left any deep or consequential thoughts in their minds, but if my

Redskins Beat Steelers, 24-7

Dudley And Baugh Feature Triumph

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3 (AP) — Sparked by Bullet Bill Dudley's 96-yard touchdown punt return, the Washington Redskins ran the Pittsburgh Steelers into the mud of Forbes Field today to win 24-7 and avenge an earlier 1950 defeat.

In addition to scoring one of the three Washington touchdowns, Dudley, a former Steeler star, kicked a field goal and made two conversions to account for 11 points. A crowd of 19,741 witnessed the National Football League game.

Washington scored in every quarter but the third while the Steelers went hungry for a touchdown until the final stanza.

A pass from Halfback Joe Geri to end Elbie Nickel brought the Steelers their lone tally. Nickel grabbed the ball on the Washington 25 on a play that carried 65 yards. Geri kicked the point.

Sammy Baugh completed 13 of 23 passes for 167 yards despite a muddy field. Score by quarters:

WASHINGTON ..... 7 10 0 7-24
PITTSBURGH ..... 0 0 0 7-7
Washington scoring: Touchdown—Dudley, Sanez, Goode. Conversions—Dudley 3. Field goals—Dudley.
Pittsburgh scoring: Touchdown—Nickel. Conversion—Geri.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Mrs. Stafford was the kind of mother who thought her eight-year-old daughter was more advanced than any other little girl in the neighborhood. She included her in the most sophisticated adult conversation, and even allowed her to use lipstick and Chanel Number Five.

When one of those new-fangled arena style theatres under a tent came to town, therefore, to present Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," Mrs. Stafford took her daughter along to see it as a matter of course. The little girl was painfully attentive and well-behaved throughout the performance, and it was only after her mother had steered her out of the tent and toward the family station wagon that she burst into tears. "What's the matter, darling?" "Yes, sobbed the little girl, "but aren't we going to go and see the elephant?"

A lady from Beacon Hill in Boston was taken to a session of the U. N. When she got home friends asked her what it was like. "Dreadful," said the lady. "It was simply crawling with foreigners."

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BARK

(Distributed by INS)

Oldtimers are now talking about the big wind of 1950. There are only a couple of telegraph wires between us and the North Pole. And they're running the wrong way.

Veterans aged six remember the big New York blizzard of 1947. We've been leaning against the wind so long that when it stops, we all fall down.

Manhattan isn't kidding Texas, Florida and California weather any more. But we have a suspicion their chambers of commerce are packing it.

We got a sample of all three last week. But we came through it like a drum major. Very little clothes left, stepping high to get across the debris and things whirling in front of our eyes.

Check To Be Made Of State Deer Kills

A check to determine the size of deer population in Maryland will be made by Dale Arner, state game technician, and four biologists from the Maryland Department of Education and Research, Solomons Island, during the hunting season which opened today.

Checks will be made at Oakland, Storey's Landing, Grantsville and Shipway's Inn in an attempt to determine the age of deer killed. This will show if state deer are increasing, decreasing or remaining stable, Arner stated. Should kills of older deer be larger an indication of the reduction of the breeding population is seen.

The method of determining deer by their teeth is very accurate and was worked out by C. W. Severinghaus, of the New York State Conservation Department, Arner stated. "Aging of other game animals such as doves, quail, turkeys and rabbits is valuable in the study of these species," he continued. "Great strides in fisheries management have been made possible because scientists can tell the age of a fish by examining the scales under a microscope and the State Department hopes to learn much about Maryland deer from this study."

Maryland deer kill increased from 56 in 1931 to 1,007 in 1948, and Arner stated that it must stop somewhere.

"Just as you can raise only so many cows on a 100-acre pasture you can support only so many deer on 100 acres of deer range," he said. "In many states the deer have become too numerous. Then many deer die of starvation during the winter. A stunted form of deer results, crop damages increase greatly, forest reproduction (young trees) may be severely curtailed, and you may end up with fewer deer than there were before. Such instances of over-population are unfortunately quite numerous."

"If deer herds are properly managed we shall always have good deer hunting."

Deer Check Stations Listed For Tucker Co.

PARSONS, W. Va. — Fielding Kyer, conservation officer of Tucker County, has listed the checking stations for deer hunters in the county. The second season this year for deer opens today and continues for two weeks.

Checking stations are located at Gillis Motor Company, Parsons, Harper's Store in Leadmine, Elmer Sturm's store in St. George, Di-Bacco Garage in Thomas, Meyer Motor Sales in Davis and Hedrick's Service Station, Stringtown.

Prior to November 6, more than 135,000 soldiers of the North Korean Red Army were captured by United Nations forces.

Shaft Firemen Map Christmas Party

FROSTBURG—Leo McNeill, president of the Shaft Volunteer Fire Department, has appointed a committee, consisting of James Tennant, Ernest Drew, Howard Ziler, James Myers and William Lyons, to make arrangements for the annual Christmas tree and Children's Christmas party to be given at the Shaft fire hall.

The department recently purchased a large television set which was installed last week and used Saturday for the Army-Navy football game.

Giants Hand 51-7 Beating To Yankees

Conerly's Passing Highlights Contest

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Chuck-in' Charley Conerly, staging his greatest performance since his college days at Mississippi, paced a hard-hitting New York Giants team to a crushing 51-7 victory over the New York Yankees today.

The win enabled the Giants to maintain their first place tie with Cleveland in the American Division of the National Football League.

The Giants, meeting their intra-city rivals for the first time before 41,630 paid fans at the Polo Grounds, struck from their single wing "A" formation with deadly efficiency.

Conerly, a passing sensation from the single wing, tossed air bombs for two touchdowns, set up another with a toss, and scored another on a line buck.

He was ably assisted by Ed Price, a dazzling runner on a muddy field, and a vicious charging Giants line which stopped the Yankees cold until the last quarter.

The Yankees, now out of the running in the other divisional race, couldn't put together a sustained attack until late in the final half when the count was 44-0. Then with Johnny Rauch passing, they won 53 yards for their score with Johnny tossing a 13-yarder to Dan Edwards. Score by quarters:

YANKEES 0 0 0 7-7
GIANTS 14 10 14 13-51
Yankees scoring: Touchdown—Edwards. Conversion—Price. Giants scoring: Touchdowns—Price, Swicki, McCoskey, Roberts, Conerly, Jackson, Mott. Conversions—R. Poole 6. Field goal—R. Poole.

Villanova Wildcats Defeat Gaels, 13-7

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3 (INS)—Villanova's fullback Pete D'Alonso scored two touchdowns today to give the Wildcats a 13 to 7 victory over the St. Mary's Gaels.

The game was played under the worst conditions in the history of Kezar Stadium which was a field of ankle-deep mud from goalpost to goalpost.

Only a handful of fans—less than a couple of hundred—were on the St. Mary's side of the stands. And on Villanova's side there was one lone rooster.

Score by quarters:
St. Mary's 0 0 0 7-7
Villanova 7 0 0 6-13

Starkey Gets 57th Bout Tonight, Seeks 14th Pro Victory

Idle since June 15, when he decided to fight Modzele at Arnold, Pa., Randall "Skeets" Starkey, Wiley Ford (W. Va.) light-heavyweight, will engage in the 57th bout of his career tonight when he engages Rudy Williams in a six-round contest at McKeesport, Pa.

Williams is the same colored lad that Starkey iced in three rounds here on April 17.

"Skeets" will be angling for his 14th straight victory since turning pro last year.

Starkey won 43 and lost 13 as an amateur. He started boxing in 1946. Nineteen of his wins were via the K. O. route—11 as an amateur and eight since he left the simon pure ranks.

He has been stopped three times. Leon Vincente turned the trick by TKO in the first round at Baltimore in 1947.

Leo Daughtry made it a 2nd round TKO in the Olympic trials at Philadelphia in 1948 and Eddie Birdwell of Atlanta, Ga., belted out "Skeets" with a terrific right to the jaw in Round No. 1 at the National AAU tourney in Boston last year.

Wednesday night the Mountain City floormen play hosts to California (Pa.) Teachers at 8 o'clock. Bill Hahn and Clifton Van Roby will officiate.

Gallaudet College of Washington, D. C., will play at Frostburg Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. "Bobby" Cavanaugh and Clifton Van Roby will work this contest.

Snead Wins Miami Open Fourth Time

Sam's 13-Under Par Score Of 267 Earns Him Prize Of $2,000

By JAMES RUSSELL
MIAMI, Dec. 3 (INS)—Sammy Snead, who slams a golf ball as hard as he did when he turned pro 16 years ago, won first prize in the $10,000 Miami Open Tournament today with five strokes to spare.

The 36-year-old White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., hillbilly carried away the $2,000 top reward by turning in a 72-hole score of 267—13 strokes under par.

His 66 on the final round was not the best mark on the Miami Springs Country Club course today but it helped him achieve his fourth Miami Open victory in the 27-year history of the tournament.

Ed (Porky) Oliver, of Seattle, carded a 65 on the final round today but finished well below Snead in the four-day accounting.

Snead's new earnings raised his yearly total to $35,758, a figure that will easily enable him to become the nation's biggest money-winning pro for the second consecutive year.

Tie For Second Place

The closest challengers to the indestructible Snead—and they never presented much of a threat—were young Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., and Dick Mayer, of Old Greenwich, Conn., who totaled their strokes at 272 to tie for second place.

Splitting the second and third prize money, they each collected $1,200.

Six golfers with 273's wound up in a deadlock for third place, which earned each of them $575.

They were Joe Kirkwood, Jr., of Daytona Beach, Fla.; Jim Turnesa, of Brilichart, N. Y.; Jim Ferrier, of San Francisco; Ted Kroll, of New Hartford, N. Y.; Glenn Teal, of Jacksonville, Fla.; and Ed Oliver, of Seattle, Wash.

Cary Middlecoff, the ex-dentist who is now pro at Ormond Beach, Fla., was all alone in fourth place. His 72-hole score was 274.

Shoe Riegel, of Tulsa, Okla., and Bob Hamilton, of Landover, Md., shot 275's to tie for fifth place.

Art Wall, Jr., of Bronxville, N. Y., was next in line with a 276 and right behind him was Marty Furgol, of North Hollywood, Cal., with a 277.

Stranahan Posts 278

The top amateur in the tournament was Frank Stranahan, wealthy Toledo, O., sparking heir who was a golfing terror on the first two rounds but who fizzled badly yesterday and today.

Stranahan finished the tournament with a 278.

Defending champion Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, who set a new tournament record of 264 in the Miami Open last year, wound up with a disappointing 288 this time.

Los Angeles Rams Trounce Green Bay

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Los Angeles Rams struck the Green Bay Packers numb with a record breaking, 51-14 victory today and assured themselves of another crack at the Chicago Bears for the National Conference title in the National Football League race.

The Rams heard the news of the Chicago Cardinals' 20-10 triumph over the Bears just before taking the field in front of 39,323 fans out here. So the Rams proceeded to blast the Packers into submission and write a host of new offensive records into the league book.

The Rams will play the Bears here Dec. 17 if the Bears defeat Detroit next week. Today's game ended the regular season for Los Angeles. Score by quarters:

Navy Still Celebrating Memorable Grid Triumph

Middies Were Great, Coach Blaik Declares After Army Losses, 14-2

By GAYLE TALBOT
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3 (AP)—It was a great Navy victory, and the sons of the goat really celebrated last night. Some of the harder specimens still were leaping nimbly from crag to crag as dawn broke over the city.

The fans awoke wondering miserably why they hadn't had the sense to grab some of that 21-point money the bookmakers were offering against Navy right up to game time.

The football experts, between blushing, were trying to figure out how much a stickout Army team could have been licked 14-2 by the Middies.

Coach Earl Blaik of Army, encountered some hours after the tremendous contest—after he had had time to swallow his disappointment and study what had happened to his young warriors—probably answered all the questions when he said:

"We were overdue for it, and I believe that Navy of today probably was as great a football team as I ever saw. They beat us good."

The happiest man in the east must have been Eddie Erdelatz, Navy's young head coach. He couldn't wipe the grin off his moon face. It comes to few football coaches to pull one like that out of the hat. If he was wondering before the game how much longer he would be hanging around Annapolis, he can forget it now.

Experts Given Lesson

It is easy to see from the vantage point of the day after what it was that the Middies did to the Soldiers. There is a lesson in it that the experts should not forget, but doubtless will.

The lesson is that any good football coach, given the spirited man-power, copious scouting reports and the time in which to perfect his plans, still can stop—for one game, at least—an offense yet devised.

Erdelatz and his advisers decided that Army's swift T-formation attack was successful largely because of the suddenness with which the ball was snapped after the Cadets ran back from their huddle. Many times, they had noticed, rival line-men were not down on their haunches and set when the play was sprung.

For the past two weeks Erdelatz had worked to correct that. Yesterday, as the ball was snapped to Army's quarterback, Bob Blaik, Navy's line was in motion, hitting hard, even viciously. It apparently shook the Cadets, for they never even looked like getting started until the final quarter, when the game had been lost.

By that time, when Al Pollard finally began to bruise his way for runs of 24 and 15 yards and lesser distances, the Cadets had buck fever. They felt they hadn't the time to make up their 12-point deficit on the ground, so they began passing desperately. Even Pollard and Frank Fischl tried their hands at the throwing game.

The result was what might have been expected. Either they missed their receivers in scoring territory or Navy intercepted.

As for the Navy attack which pushed for two quick touchdowns in the second quarter, the second one going 63 yards in three long gains, the thing which most upset Army's defenders undoubtedly was the ability of Bob Zastrow, Navy's husky quarterback, to "sneak" through the middle for repeated gains.

Zastrow was supposed to be only a line passer, which he proved himself to be, too. Zastrow's bull-like charge through guard for seven yards and the first Navy score appeared to catch the Cadets completely by surprise.

He started the second touchdown march with a similar effort of 11 yards. Army's line-backers moved in grimly to stop him, and on the next play Bill Powers, a 165-pound speedster, whipped around end for 22 yards. Zastrow then hit end Jim Baldinger in the end zone with the pass that locked up the victory.

In mild defense of the sports writers and radio men who voted Army the country's No. 2 team in the final Associated Press poll, the result of yesterday's game does not necessarily prove they were wrong.

Army still has a very fine football team, indeed. So does Navy. Had the Middies played every game of their rugged schedule the way they played the Cadets yesterday they might have been claiming the national championship today.

Chicago Cardinals Score Upset Over Bears, 20-10

Don Paul's TD Pass Yablonski's Goal Win Game In Final Period

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (INS)—The underdog Chicago Cardinals scored 10 points in the fourth quarter to score a stunning National Football League upset over the Chicago Bears, 20 to 10, before 31,919 fans at Chicago today.

The lowly Cardinals' fifth victory in eleven games snapped a four-game winning streak for the Bears and threatened their first place position in the National Conference of the pro circuit.

The Cardinals were always in command despite the Bears rally in the third quarter for a 10-all tie. The Cards had rolled to a 10 to 0 edge in the first half before the Bears scored with less than 44 seconds remaining before the intermission.

The winners opened the scoring in the upset when Pat Harder booted a 23-yard field goal in the first 10 minutes of the traditional contest.

Cards Take 10-0 Lead

Then Jim Hardy's quarterback sneak of one yard and Harder's conversion gave the Cards their 10 to 0 lead.

Hardy's punt was blocked by guard Ray Bray and Fullback John Hoffman recovered for the Bears on the Cardinals' 17-yard-line.

The Bears moved to the Cards' one-yard-line and Johnny Lujack went over on a quarterback sneak. Lujack, who later booted a 15-yard field goal for the Bears' tying points, supplied the extra point from placement to cut the Cardinals' lead to a halftime 10 to 7.

Lujack, runner-up to Detroit's Doak Walker in the pros' individual scoring race, accounted for all of the unlucky Bears' 10 points and ran his season scoring total to 109.

George McAfee recovered Charlie Trippi's fumble on the Cardinals' 32-yard line to set the stage for Lujack's field goal and the tie-score.

The fired-up Bears moved to the Cardinal three before Lujack tied his field goal.

The Cardinals moved 66 yards for their second touchdown midway in the fourth quarter. The payoff was assured when Don Paul, a rookie halfback for the Cardinals, made a sensational leaping catch of Hardy's 35-yard pass on the five. Paul bulled his way around three Bear defenders for the winners' 17 to 10 edge.

The Cards' Jerry Davis intercepted a Lujack pass and moved to the Bears' 43 before the Big Red moved to the final score. Ventan Yablonski booted that—a field goal—on the 26-yard line.

Series Is Squared

The upset evened the Cards-Bears' All-Chicago series at one game each. The Bears won the other contest this season, 27 to 6, early in October.

Hardy completed 19 of 33 passes tried and accounted for 255 of the Cards' 388 yards. Lujack completed seven of 18 aerials for 112 yards, and the Bears rushed for another 140 gain for a total of 252. The Bears gained 11 first downs to seven for the Cards.

The Bears have won eight, lost three, but meet Detroit next Sunday at Chicago in their final game of the season. Score by quarters:

BEARS 0 7 0 3-10
CARDINALS 7 7 0 6-20
Bears scoring: Touchdowns—Lujack. Conversions—Lujack (placement). Field goal—Lujack (placement). Cardinals scoring: Touchdowns—Hardy, Paul. Conversions—Harder 2 (placement). Field goals—Harder (placement), Yablonski (placement).

School Leaders Speak At Keyser

Besides hearing these speakers the Rotarians also listened as Edward Lester, a student from Allegany county, demonstrated progress of music with a rendition of a short piano solo.

Kessler's remarks on special education were of considerable interest to the Rotarians. He explained how young pupils take examinations to enable the examiner to discover any abnormal qualities of the youngsters. This allows the examiner to plan for training children with defects.

White Paper On Men

AGGI MCNEILL, one of the regular V necks on "Leave It to the Girls," has issued a White Paper on men. "No truer words were ever dashed off than 'The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.' And none more preposterous than 'It's a man's world.' Men may strut and bounce importantly about the stage—but it's women who pull the strings that make them operate . . . For as every woman knows, men are limp and lifeless puppets without the girls to pull the strings."

Up to a late John Crosby hour last night this was the final communiqué from the headquarters of the babes—uh—women, according to the limp and lifeless puppet around her who handles official pronouncements of this kind. Of course, his strings aren't as well handled as some puppets I know, so you can't be sure that's the final word on high or not.

My own strings have been operated by a succession of females of one sort or another, not all of them adroit puppeteers. The girl handling the strings which landed me into this job, for example, Clear case of drunken driving. Ever since, I've been doomed to look at television, including Maggi McNeill, Eloise McElhone, Robin Chandler and the rest of the string-pullers on "Leave It to the Girls."

The other day, a young man, who for some unaccountable reason is writing a magazine piece about me, asked me if there was a single suggestion I'd ever advanced which had actually been adopted by the industry since I took over this job. So far as I know, there is only one I once suggested that Eloise McElhone trim down a bit if she planned to stay in big league TV. She went on a diet the next day. (Told me so herself.) That's one string I pulled all by myself, McNeill.

There are a lot of girls around TV these days, pulling strings in all directions. One of them is Betty Furness, who also pulls open refrigerator doors on "Studio One." On another, fairly new show, "Penthouse Party," Miss Furness manipulates real, live men and women. On the whole, I think this is a step in the wrong direction for Miss Furness, the refrigerator doors operating a good deal more smoothly and efficiently than the party-goers.

"Penthouse Party," which is on ABC-TV at 10 p. m. EST on Fridays, is a fairly significant enterprise because, some instinct tells me, we are in for a flood of similar programs. It is set in a mood of formalized informality, stressing what appears to my skeptical eye to be the rehearsed ad lib.

We are confronted first with a front door which is shortly opened by Miss Furness, who invites us all, each and every one of us, into her party. Inside we find a host of merry-makers, dancing, playing the piano, singing, drinking, eating. We are introduced to each one of them—Edward Everett Horton, Buddy Weed, John Carradine, and the rest. Miss Furness then entrusts us to sit down and is altogether so overwhelmingly hospitable I expect her to shoot Scotch in my mouth right through the screen.

I don't know how this sort of thing strikes you. Frankly, it makes me very nervous; I feel somehow that I've wandered into the wrong party and they're just being nice.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

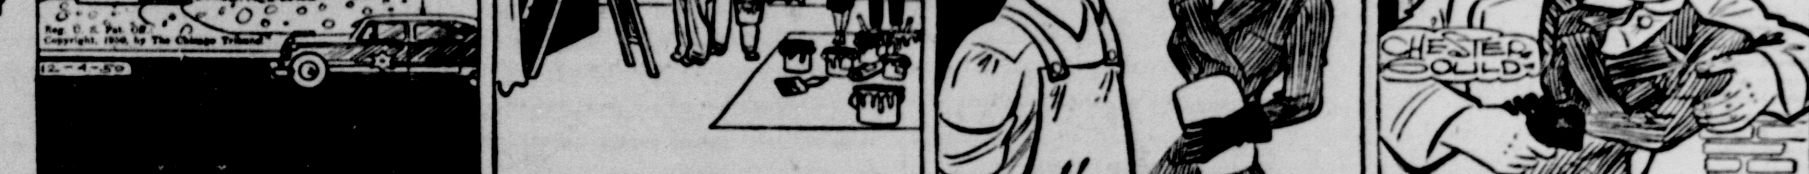

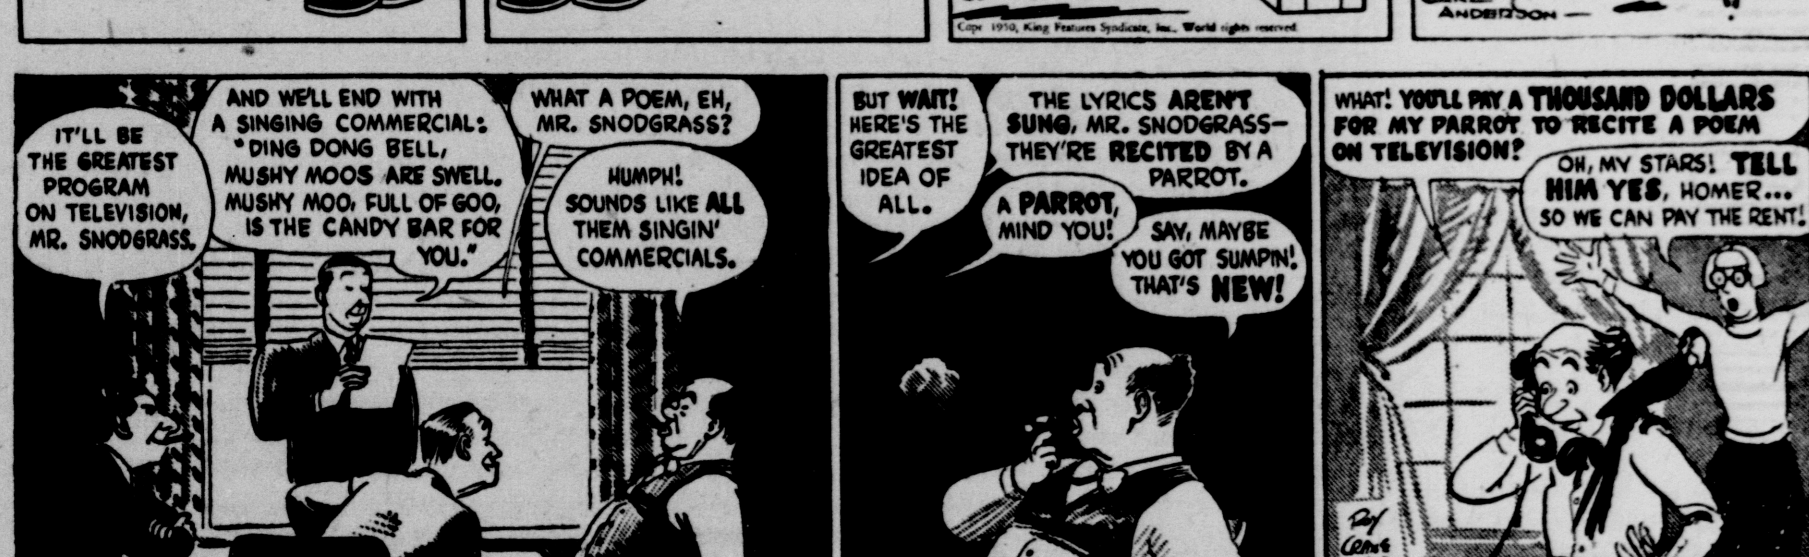

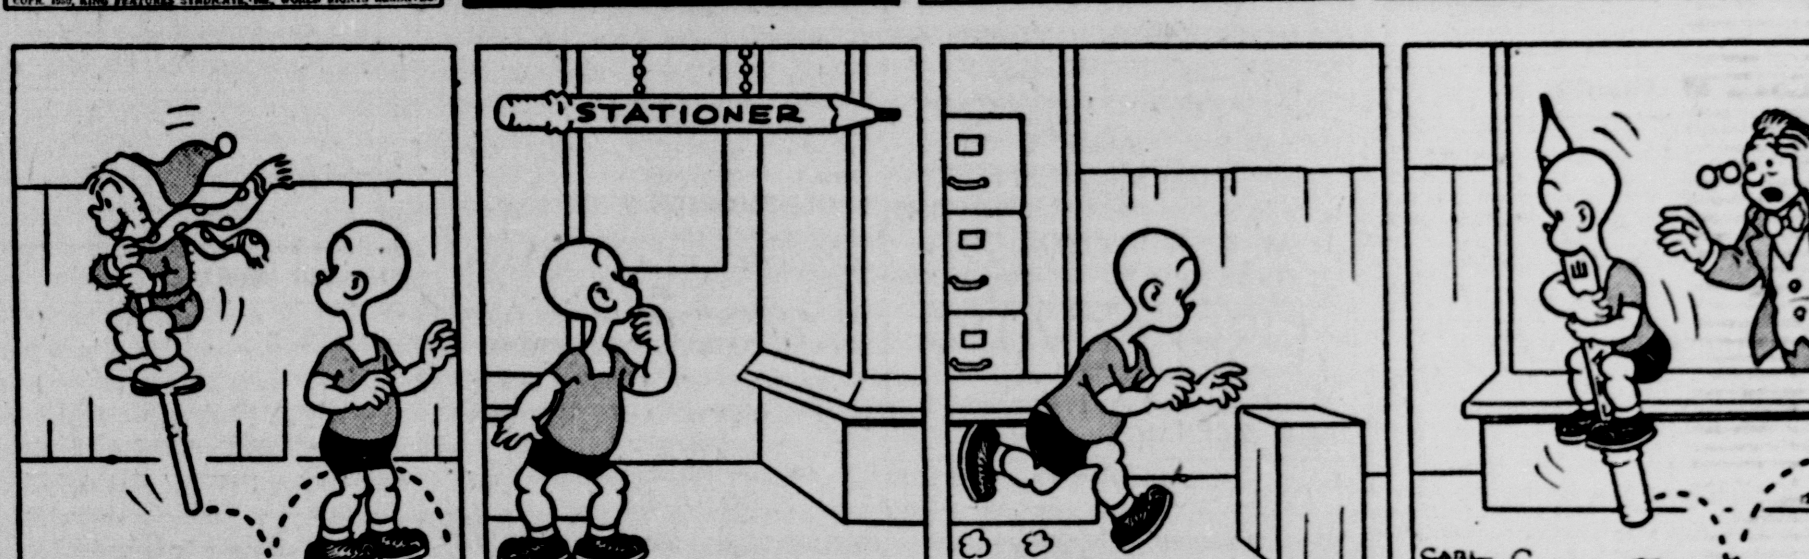

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Cumberland Stores

One store manager explained that more formal wear is being purchased this season in women's clothing. The general trend seems to be toward conservatism.

Novelty is finding its way into practical and useful items too, examples being the compact and clear lighters designed to resemble miniature cameras and opera glasses. They are making a tremendous appeal to those who like to be just a little different.

Gifts For Men
One cigarette lighter on the market for the first time uses butane gas and gives six months of clean, odorless flames, but contains no wick and uses no gasoline.

In men's wear there are many new items. One of the most outstanding is a synthetic fiber called orlon, said to wear as well as nylon in such things as socks and will absorb perspiration which nylon will not.

Plaid have been unusually popular in men's wear, one manager said, especially in such things as ties, coats, robes, sports shirts, and even socks. Corduroy has been a favorite too, either in solid colors or in plaids.

Plastics are being used for making more and more things and many think for making better things. Just a few of the items that are made of plastics this year are toys, a plastic circus for example, umbrellas, window curtains, tablecloths, lamp

Children's Christmas

The spirit of Yuletide is never so great with anyone as it is with the children, for Christmas this year, as it has always been, a children's season.

When the chubby little fellow with the red suit and long white beard fills the stockings this year, it will be with some new and unusual things, for the accent in toys this year is on realism — they are made as nearly like the real thing as possible.

Dolls that are bathed in a new bathinette are protected by a safety strap. Toy electric ranges actually cook and iron really heat enough to iron small doll clothing.

For the young tottling soldiers there are atomic rifles that shoot bullets the size of ping pong balls, and for the adventurous young pilot there are jet planes ready for the take-off.

Musical toys have been introduced for the first time this year and include musical merry-go-rounds, ferries, wheels, and so on.

The greatest influence in things for children though has come about because of the tastes of the kids themselves and their rooting for the western range riders. Many of the stores have specially built cowboy corals where you can buy six shooters in gold and silver plate with pearl handles, as well as fluffy skirts for the cowgirls.

Indeed, the girls are not to be forgotten in this age of the cowboy, for playtoys in western design are made for all children. Complete western outfits are available with boots, fringed shirts, jackets, hats, and chaps that come in bright-colored crimson, reminiscent of the real cowboy who roamed the western plains.

Another tremendous influence is the ever-popular little reindeer by the name of Rudolph who has his name tied to just about everything for children. You will find Rudolph sweaters, ties, belts, balloons, flashlights, coloring books, and wrapping paper.

In the music department Rudolph is one of the very best sellers on a record made by a popular western motion picture star. One salesgirl relates that "Rudolph, the Red Nosed Reindeer" and "Frosty, the Snow Man" are best sellers in Christmas music, skyrocketing over the traditional recordings of older Yuletide songs.

For the first time in history, unbreakable phonograph records are being sold, especially with recordings made for children. They are proving so popular, despite a slightly higher cost, a clerk said, that they will probably be used more and more in the future.

People Buying Essentials
With most people this year, the trend is to buy essential rather than luxury items. One store manager attributed the trend to the sobering effects of the international crisis, another explaining that the necessary things that everyone needs around the home are now so unique they tend to replace the desire for more luxurious goods.

For the merchant, the rush of the Yule season begins the day after Thanksgiving and extends to sometime after the middle of January, allowing a couple of weeks for people to exchange gifts that are not of the correct fit, taste, etc.

"Ever since I've been in business, and that's been a long while," one manager related, "people have not done their Christmas shopping early. In many ways they are cheating themselves, for it is only natural that stocks of the better things become exhausted just before Christmas Day."

He went on to say that the choices of gifts this season are more varied and better than they have ever been before and that all clerks and workers within the organization are doing all they can to give good service to customers.

Few Overseas Gifts
Interesting too, is the comment that one store head made concerning packages sent overseas. During World War II, he explained, stores were called upon to wrap and send gifts to servicemen abroad. This season there has been practically no such demand, probably indicating that the boys overseas are well supplied with things they need and that they are not writing home for anything to be sent, he said.

And so, with Christmas only three weeks away, it seems evident to everyone that there will be no shortage of glittering packages under the Yule tree Christmas morning, thanks to the adroitness of the men who have lived and worked during the first half of the Twentieth Century.

Starting Thursday, December 14, local stores will remain open until 9 a.m. for the Christmas shopping season. The schedule will remain in effect until Saturday, December 23. On that day stores will close at 6 p.m. en, the curtains burning and paint peeling off the wall.

Glicksman removed his coat and tried to beat out the flames with it, but caught fire himself as they decided to leave the house.

When they reached the dining room, the blast hit them, knocking all four of them to the floor. When they regained their feet, they went on out the front door.

Neighbor Called Firemen
Mrs. C. C. Gillum, who lives across the road from the Glicksmans, said she was sitting at the table in her kitchen when "I heard a noise. I thought something hit our house."

Mrs. Gillum said she got up to go to the front door to see if there had been a wreck and "saw all the fire."

"I called my husband who was already in bed. I quickly called Bowling Green and LaVale fire departments and my husband called Cresaptown."

"When I saw the flames I was so excited I don't remember just what I did see. I thought I first saw the flames upstairs."

Mrs. Gillum was talking while State Trooper A. M. Spioch helped check the contents of a pocketbook found at the scene.

Another neighbor, Wilda Jewell, 15, is in the tenth grade at Allegheny High School. She lives about an eighth of a mile across the street.

"The explosion jarred our house," Wilda said. She added that she thought "a train had jumped the track," but when I "pulled up the shade in my bedroom I could see the flame."

rites were conducted by Henry Hart Post No. 1411, VFW, Capt. Raymond F. Whitehair, commander.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

Do you know when you are happy?

Answer: In one sense, No. At the moment when you are experiencing intense happiness or pleasure, your attention is so concentrated on your physical or mental sensations that you're not aware of anything else, and it's only afterwards that you realize you were happy. That's one reason why we sometimes say we don't appreciate our "blessings" until we have lost them. But all it need really mean is that strong emotion and self-observation cannot occur at the same time—they alternate to form the normal "rhythm of life."

Is there any such thing as a "love life"?

Answer: Yes, though the phrase does not describe every man or woman who becomes the third side of a marital "triangle." The true love life is a person whose main, if perhaps unconscious purpose

Will candy "spoil your appetite"?

Answer: It may in the sense of making you cease to feel hungry without having had the nourishment you need. Researches conducted at the Permanente Foundation, Oakland, Calif., seem to show that sugar both blunts the sense of smell (upon which food flavors largely depend) and "converts the sensation of appetite into one of satiety." This is true, however, only when the sugar is eaten, not when it is injected into the veins. Candy has its place in normal diets, but too soon before meals it destroys but does not satisfy hunger.

Four Burned In Explosion At Bowling Green

Glicksman Home Burns After Blast

Victims Set Afire By Spread Of Flames

Four persons were burned severely and a one-and-one-half story brick and frame bungalow at Bowling Green was virtually ruined by an explosion and accompanying fire about 10 o'clock last night.

Hundreds of residents of the McMullen Highway village gathered outside the house as volunteer firemen from three Allegany county communities fought valiantly in an effort to save the structure.

The injured:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glicksman, 555 McMullen Highway, Bowling Green. Their condition was reported fairly good.

Their son, Ronald, 8, whose condition is reported good.

Mrs. Emma Scotti, LaVale, a friend of the family who had been spending the weekend at the Glicksman's home. Her condition is reported critical.

Attendants at Memorial Hospital, where the four persons were taken, said that Mrs. Scotti, the most seriously injured, suffered burns on her body and face.

Glicksman, the attendant reported, sustained second and third degree burns of his face and body. Mrs. Glicksman was similarly burned. Their son had third-degree burns of the arms and face.

The injured man, a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., came to Cumberland some five years ago when the Cumberland Undergarment Co., Inc., located at 917 Gay Street. He was a foreman for the firm and had lived at the Bowling Green residence about three years. The house was described as one of the most attractive in Bowling Green.

The house is located about half a block west of Don's Market, the community's grocery. Many of the villagers gathered in the store after the fire in an effort to learn the fate of the Glicksmans.

Smelled Gas Fumes

Contacted at the hospital, Glicksman said that they had been to a movie during the evening. Upon returning home and entering the house they smelled gas fumes.

Glicksman checked the furnace, which burns gas, and found nothing out of order. He heard his wife and Mrs. Scotti, who were on the first floor, yelling that the house was on fire.

Both Glicksman and his son ran from the basement to the first floor and saw the curtains at the windows burning. His wife and Mrs. Scotti were also afire.

Suddenly, he said, there was an explosion and everything seemed to be afire, including himself and son. They escaped by falling to the floor and rolling out the door.

On the outside, a crowd assembled and the fire departments from Bowling Green, LaVale and Cresaptown were summoned.

A passerby, Fred Kreiger, saw the house afire and suddenly the walls of the house caved in. Kreiger took the four injured people to Memorial Hospital.

Furnace Intact

Although gas was blamed for the explosion, it was doubted that the blast occurred in the gas furnace. After the flames had subsided partially, the place was examined hurriedly and it was observed that the furnace seemed to be virtually intact.

The blast tore away three of the four walls of the house, the first floor of which was constructed of brick. The second floor was frame and it was there that the fire which followed the explosion concentrated.

Firemen were hampered in their efforts because of a lack of water supply. After water from the pumps had been poured onto the flames and they still were burning fiercely, the fire fighters crossed the highway and began pumping water from a nearby creek.

A light rainfall dampened the spectators but aided the firemen in their work.

Happened At 10 p.m.

J. M. Kisamore, RFD 6, a mail carrier who lives a short distance from the Glicksmans' residence, said that he knew the blast occurred at 10 o'clock because he had just set his clock preparatory to retiring moments before the explosion.

"At first I thought there had been an automobile crash out on the highway," Kisamore stated. "Then I pulled on my clothes and when I got to the front door I could see the flames. I also heard screams and someone asked for a ride to a hospital. Then I saw the people get in a car and drive off."

Police Investigate

Trooper First Class William F. Baker, acting commander of LaVale State Police Barracks, said Glicksman told him this story:

He, Mrs. Glicksman, Mrs. Scotti and Ronald had just returned from the movies, and parked the car in the garage under the house, when they smelled gas.

Glicksman checked both the gas furnace and the hot water heater. State Police quoted him as saying, and found both of them apparently to be operating correctly.

When they reached the first floor to further check the odor of gas, Glicksman noticed fire in the kitchen.

Bowling Green House Destroyed By Blast

The photograph above shows how a terrific Sunday night blast blew out three of the four side walls of the Sol C. Glicksman home in Bowling Green, and then set fire to the house. Mr. and Mrs. Glicks-man, their son, Ronnie, 8, and a visitor at their home, Mrs. Emma Scotti, were burned.

Fort Hill Players Are In Rehearsal

Group Will Present Comedy Friday Night

Fort Hill Players, under the direction of Miss Helen Smith, are rehearsing for the presentation on December 8, a three-act comedy, "Life With Mother."

Miss Mary Workman and Miss Jean Bowen, in charge of the wardrobe, have done an authentic job of costuming.

Fashion reproductions of that period have been investigated, stylists consulted, the attic trunks ransacked with the result that the members of the cast will appear attired in clothes of the "good old days."

"Because of the different scenes, 'Life With Mother' requires an extensive wardrobe. In one scene 'Mother,' played by Kay Avers, wears a pink silk afternoon dress with plaid silk overskirt and bustle and black velvet necklace and sash at the waist.

"Father," played by Lewis Tagliaferre, a determined horseman, appears at one time in a riding costume of brown whipcord riding breeches, matching button gaiters, brown Harris tweed riding jacket, checked flannel vest, white plaid four-in-hand cravat, white shirt, jodhpur-type boots, riding top hat and brown suede gloves.

"Michael," played by William Brooks, the calculating groom, wears a chocolate brown coachman's livery with rakish brown derby in the same scene.

Assisting Miss Bowen and Miss Workman are Marlene Dyche, Harriet Chase and Phyllis McKenzie.

Cumberland Stores Have The Most Unique And Varied Selection Of Yuletide Gifts In History At Mid-Century Christmas Season

By ROGER SCHNELL
News Staff Writer

Christmas 1950! Right in the middle of the Twentieth Century—the one that has seen prodigious accomplishments in the fields of science and industry—everyone practices the age-old custom of giving and of paying respect to the birth of one of the world's greatest ideals.

There is no better place to witness the achievements of this era than in the stores right here in Cumberland where you will find one of the largest arrays of gift possibilities ever to glitter from store counters.

Color seems to be the keynote that makes this Yuletide season different and more gay than any in the past. You find it prevalent in wearing apparel for everyone, from men's socks and ties to the rainwear of the dainty womenfolk. Wrapping paper that used to come in shades of forest green is now much brighter and more variegated, both in color combinations and pattern.

Window curtains that were almost dismal a half century ago have become much lighter in shade and it is nothing unusual to find hugh bouquets of crimson roses or bunches of blue violets decorating them.

Color too has been carried to the jewelry that make such fine gifts for the ladies, for she might like a necklace of pearls coupled with imitation colored stones to form a centerpiece that fits at the throat on a multi-pearl strand. A bracelet made of genuine stones all in multi-colors might appeal to another.

Gifts for the home are continuing to be practical but more unique in design, a knife holder that fits against the wall in the kitchen and holds the knives in place because it is a permanent magnet is a good example of the unusual. Things that are new, having never been on the market before, are a snack tray with a cheese server in silver; a combination of wood, glass, and sterling silver; several unique verriplate combinations of candlestick holders and vases, as well as candleholders, vases, and candy or nut trays all combined into one;

U. S. Must Have Defense Force, Caldara Says

Aggression Increased Speaker Tells Elks

"Aggression against the United States has in no way decreased as a result of the present Korean conflict, but it might possibly have increased," Col. Joseph D. Caldara, U. S. Army Air Force, said last night in an address at the memorial services of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, at Allegany High School auditorium.

"Communism in Korea," he said, "is only one attack upon freedom. We must support an 'armed force in being' to defend our own country and other democratic nations."

Anti-Military Power

He pointed out that the United States has not been a military power during its history, but it has rather been an "anti-military power."

It must now create an armed force made up of many units to work together as a team. He emphasized the fact that a large Air Force alone will not bring an end to a war quickly. "All branches of the Armed Forces must do their part in the defense of our country; no single branch can work effectively without the help of the others," he said.

The obligation of the Air Forces is to create a force to provide for air defense of the United States in case of attack.

A long range air force must be developed and must be ready to retaliate in case we are attacked at home. This unit must be powerful enough to bomb the home country of that nation which attacks us.

Thirdly, he said, we need a tactical Air Force to support our ground forces in combat.

In speaking of the new jet planes that Russia has recently developed, he admitted that they are good, but added that they are not match for the American planes fighting in Korea.

Failed Those Who Died Col. Caldara recalled that the world had not been made "safe for Democracy" in World War I, nor were the four freedoms established as the result of World War II.

With this in mind, the Air Force colonel suggested that we might have fallen those who had died—"those we honor tonight."

He said there may be manpower shortages on the home front—in industry—and said that shortages may come in civilian goods.

"Our sacrifice must be great, even as great as those we honor tonight. As we honor those who are gone, we must work for those who still live."

Besides the address by Col. Caldara, the service consisted of a eulogy to those Elks who had died. The eulogy was built around the theme that Elks never really die when the principles which they taught live on—the principles being the spirit of fellowship, patriotism to country, and worship of God.

Elks Are Honored Especially honored were those who died during the past year. They are Charles G. Berkshire, Matthew A. Coffey, Mortie S. Cosgrove, Arch F. Davis, Joseph E. Dorsey, James L. Drumm, Paul Heuer, William A. Huxter, C. Philip Jolley, P.E.R.

Earl E. Long, Joseph T. Nelson, Harry A. Pitzer, P.E.R., William L. Reinhardt, James G. Sowers, John J. Stump, P.E.R., Theodore A. Wallace, and Frank M. Wilson.

The quartet of the lodge sang "My Task," "Traveler, Whither Art Thou Going," "The Vacant Chair," and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

Wormack pointed out that in all the recent discussion regarding the 25-family unit planned here for colored families, no one has made any effort to determine, from the affected families themselves, where they might want to live.

As spokesman for the group, Wormack said the criticism to date has all been directed at some particular site and no one has asked the colored people for their opinion.

He said "before the Housing Authority proceeds to build these units anywhere, it might be good business to determine if they can be rented to those intended."

He said he hopes to get an expression of opinion at tonight's meeting, together with suggested sites from those most apt to be affected.

Colored Group Will Discuss Housing Plan

The site question of the colored section of Cumberland's Federal Housing plan, is to be discussed tonight at a meeting of the Cumberland Branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

According to John Wormack, president, the meeting will be held at 8:30 p. m. on South Lee Street, and the group hopes to offer a suggestion for a site to the Housing Authority and Mayor and City Council.

Wormack pointed out that in all the recent discussion regarding the 25-family unit planned here for colored families, no one has made any effort to determine, from the affected families themselves, where they might want to live.

As spokesman for the group, Wormack said the criticism to date has all been directed at some particular site and no one has asked the colored people for their opinion.

Dues to the council were boosted from two cents to three-and-a-half cents per month per member, as a result of Friday convention action. The proposed legislation was included in resolutions adopted Thursday.

Patrick Zembower, Cumberland, was named a member of a standing committee to combat racial discrimination in the ranks of Maryland labor. Creation of this committee was called for in one of the resolutions adopted during the Saturday morning session.

Other last-day resolutions applauded Secretary of State Dean Acheson, called for elimination of alleged wage differences over the state in the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and urged increased activity on behalf of the Political Action Committee of the CIO in Maryland.

Darrell D. Smith, Washington, assistant to the director of the Political Action Committee of the CIO, said at the convention's closing session that the PAC raised and spent $460,000 nationally in the November 7 election. He contended that successful Republican candidates last month appealed to labor.

Bye Bye Blyne

With publication of his column, Pitching Horseshoes, this morning, Billy Rose is putting away his typewriter and saying "Bye Bye Blyne."

Rose has decided to give up writing his column because of his health and on his doctor's advice.

Pitching Horseshoes has not been published for the past two weeks because Rose underwent an unexpected operation and was not able to prepare his copy. Still not recovered from what was expected to keep him out of harness for no more than a week, Rose reached what he said was a "tough" decision not to resume writing his three-times-a-week column.

He sings his swan song on Page 5 this morning.

Geppert Named New Assistant State's Attorney

Fletcher Selects Former Delegate

William H. Geppert, 38, Braddock Road, is the new assistant State's Attorney for Allegany County.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher appointed Geppert Saturday as his assistant. On that day Fletcher mailed a letter to the county commissioners advising them of the appointment. Geppert expects to move to his new office this afternoon.

A native of Clarksburg, W. Va., Geppert attended public schools there and later obtained his AB and LLB degrees from West Virginia University.

Geppert started the practice of law in Cumberland in 1935, shortly after completion of his law course at Morgantown.

His first political appointment came in June, 1938, from the late Governor Harry W. Nice, who appointed him judge of Peoples Court, filling an unexpired term. After serving one year in that capacity he returned to private law practice.

In September, 1941, the new assistant State's Attorney was ordered to active duty with the Navy. He served in Naval intelligence and was attached to amphibious forces in the Pacific. He returned to Cumberland in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant commander.

Geppert was elected to the House of Delegates in November, 1946, and for the past four years has served as a member of the delegation from Allegany county. He did not seek reelection this fall.

Chairman of the Naval advisory committee here for the past four years, Geppert belongs to numerous organizations, including Ohr Lodge 131, A.F. and A.M.; Scottish Rite, Cumberland Lodge 63, BPO Elks; American Legion, VFW, director of Western Maryland Motor Club, Cumberland Country Club, Canada Hose Company No. 1, South End Republican Club and is a vice-president of the Sixth District Republican Club.

Attendants reported Fresh's body, his arms and legs were covered with burns. Clothing apparently had been stripped from him by Kelly workers before he was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance.

Harry Thomas Keefe, 31-year-old son of Little Orleans, was admitted to the same institution yesterday afternoon with a gunshot wound of the right thigh, according to State Police.

Criminal Investigator William F. Baker said Keefe was hunting rabbits one mile east of Green Ridge Station with his cousin, Eugene Snyder, and the latter's son, Robert, when the shooting occurred about noon.

Another mishap victim, Brice Bosley, 39, Fort Ashby, W. Va., remained "fair" last night at Memorial where he was admitted Friday after falling from a truck at the Coleanese plant. He suffered a possible skull fracture.
